PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT REELECTED

Electoral Landslide Makes Third Term Certain

Total Popular Vote Relatively Close; Margin of 3,000,000

Washington, Nov. 6.

PRESIDENT Roosevelt's third-term victory was building up at 11.30 a.m. today (12.30 a.m. Shanghai time, Thursday) toward another electoral college landslide, but the popular vote for Mr. Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, appeared to be the largest in history for any defeated candidate.

President Roosevelt's re-election was assured mathematically at 9.50 a.m. today (10.50 p.m. Shanghai Time, Wednesday) when 20 states with at least 266 electoral votes had given him safe pluralities. President Roosevelt needed 266 out of a possible 531 electoral votes to win the Presidency again—and in winning became the first President in the history of the nation to be re-elected to a third term in the White House.

The New Deal appeared to have assured itself of another four years in the White House and at least two more on Capitol Hill, inasmuch as both branches of Congress remained Democratic as a result of successful New Deal Congressional campaigns.

With the latest figures, President Roosevelt was leading in 39 states, totalling 451 electoral votes—185 more than the majority necessary for re-election. Meanwhile, Mr. Willkie led nine states having 80 electoral votes.

The total popular vote was close compared with previous Roosevelt contests, with the President leading by three million plus votes—a margin which had not changed materially throughout the morning.

The United Press had tabulated 34,500 000 votes by 6.30 a.m. today (7.30 p.m. Shanghai time, Wednesday)—about three-fifths of the expected total.

Trusted Friend

There was great rejoicing in Britain, according to United Press observers there, with the election drawing headlines overshadowing the war news. British editors assumed that it was a victory of their "old and trusted friend."

Japan was intensely interested. The Italians were pessimistic, fearing that President Roosevelt might quickly "whip up war fever." Meanwhile, the United States' Western Hemisphere neighbours were highly pleased, according to newspaper reports.

In Chungking, extraordinary enthusiasm reigned. President Roosevelt's success there met more enthusiasm than the reopening of the Burma Road or the Chinese recapture of Nanning.

At 9.30 a.m. (10.30 p.m. Shanghai time, Wednesday), the total popular vote was: President Roosevelt 20,575,895; Mr. Willkie 17,195,962.

President Roosevelt's apparently overwhelming victory had an immediate reaction on the New York market which opened quiet but with prices from a fraction of a point to one point lower.—United Press.

Mr. Willkie around midnight told his followers and the United Press, "I am not giving up," although Senator Charles L. McNary, Republican Vice-Presidential nominee, already had conceded defeat.

Meanwhile, from Democrats came pleas for national unity. Far from

Roosevelt Speaks To His Country

President Foresees Trying Times Ahead; Col. Knox Much Pleased at Results

Hyde Park, N.Y., Nov. 6.

President Roosevelt told the nation by radio early today that America faces trying times ahead.

The President, assured of a third term in the White House, promised he would maintain the policies he established during his earlier two terms as Chief Executive.

Mr. Roosevelt talked to his Duchess County supporters a few minutes after midnight, when increasing returns indicated that he was almost certain of victory. He said, "We, of course, face difficult times in this country, but I think you will find me the same Franklin Roosevelt that you have known a great many years."

He admitted that his reelection was not yet confirmed, pointing out that returns from California, Oregon and other states in the Far West were only scattered thus far, "but it looks alright."

He made his speech from the verands of his Hyde Park estate to democrats who bore torches, banners and noise-makers and who were accompanied by a band.

The President retired at 2.35 a.m. (3.35 p.m. Shanghai time, Wednesday).

President Roosevelt last night awaited the national election results on his family estate near here after becoming the first American Chief Executive ever to vote for his own third term in office.

In an effort to smash the 150-year-old American tradition against a third term for any man in the White House, the President voted in a green-curtained election booth in the town hall at 12.20 p.m. He required only 68 seconds to fill out his ballot.

Last night the big dining room table at the President's estate was stripped of its linen. Electoral vote charts and other election memoranda were spread across the broad expanse. Three automatic teletype printers were bringing the latest returns to the President who sat beside the table. Three radios were tuned in on the major radio networks. Arrangements also were made for Democratic leaders in all parts of the country to telephone the President the latest results in their districts.

Like thousands of other Americans, the President had a bet up on the election. He participated in a pool to which his White House secretaries and White House newspaper correspondents each contributed one dollar —United Press.

Col. Knox Pleased

Chicago, Nov. 6.

Col. Frank Knox, the Secretary of the Navy, late last night declared President Roosevelt was victorious in the presidential election.

America Refuses to "Back Up"

Chicago, Nov. 6.

The Chicago "Daily News," which supported Mr. Wendell L. Willkie, in an editorial today attributed his defeat to attempts of Republicans in the latter part of the election campaign to depict themselves as the "peace party" and designate the Democrats as the "war party." The journal, which is published by Col. Frank Knox, Navy Secretary in President Roosevelt's Cabinet, said that "people refused to take fear. They emphasized by their vote that they are not for giving way, backing up or even falling silent before dictators. It was a vote heard round the world."

Severe Blow at Hitler Seen in Election Result

Britain Pleased and Italy Pessimistic

London, Nov. 6.

Britain today was jubilant over President Roosevelt's great triumph and foresaw immediate substantial and increased American aid to Britain.

At the same time, the swing of the American voters toward President Roosevelt was interpreted as a crushing blow for Chancellor Adolf Hitler and an opportune reaffirmation of Democratic ideals.

In many British quarters it was stated before the election that President Roosevelt's return to a third term would be a powerful blow to Chancellor Hitler.—United Press.

Italy Pessimistic

Rome, Nov. 6.

Italians today were most pessimistic regarding the future of Italo-American and Axis-American relations following President Roosevelt's reelection.

They considered that Mr. Roosevelt would not lose any time in whipping up war fever in an effort to bring the United States into the war on Britain's side.

Although Rome does not believe that the United States physically is able to make its weight felt militarily for several months, they conceded that from a long range view-point the United States would eventually be a formidable enemy.

Apart from the United States' foreign policy, most Italians feel personal bitterness against President Roosevelt because of his uncomplimentary remarks about Italy, particularly his "knife in the back" speech soon after Italy had entered the war at the time when France was collapsing.—United Press.

Japan Disappointed

Tokyo, Nov. 6.

The immediate reaction to President Roosevelt's reelection in Japanese public circles today was one of disappointment.

Japanese were generally disappointed because of their belief that there would have been a chance of reorientation of American policy toward Japan under a new American administration.

Another interpretation of the result here was that it was the majority of American peoples' endorsement of his firm policy toward Japan. Therefore, the Japanese believed, alleviation of the present strained Japanese-American relations was unlikely.

Confirmation of President Roosevelt's reelection did not arrive in time to make the evening newspapers, but since his victory was a foregone conclusion the vernacular press tomorrow will emphasize that the Japanese Government must prepare against stronger American anti-Japan measures.—United Press.

Berlin Cool

Berlin, Nov. 6.

Official German quarters today reacted coldly toward the reelection of President Roosevelt.

"Roosevelt's reelection is regarded cooly and objectively in Wilhelmstrasse (Foreign Office)," authorized quarters said.

"It is not considered important from the inner German viewpoint. The form of government and elections are a matter for the United States.

"Whatever Roosevelt does about the promises and statements he made during his campaign is a question of time and cannot be forecast'," they added.

"The large participation in the elections shows how interested the United States people are in the question of intervention or non-intervention in the present war which was the issue placed to the forefront by both candidates.

"We regard the election campaign with interest, but see no reason to do anything other than continue being interested spectators."—United Press.

Belgrade Enthusiastic

Belgrade, Nov. 6.

President Roosevelt's reelection was received here today with the greatest public satisfaction. Many quarters openly expressed enthusiasm. The populace generally regarded Mr. Roosevelt as the personification of America as the eventual saviour of Europe.—United Press.

Filipinos See Firm Stand

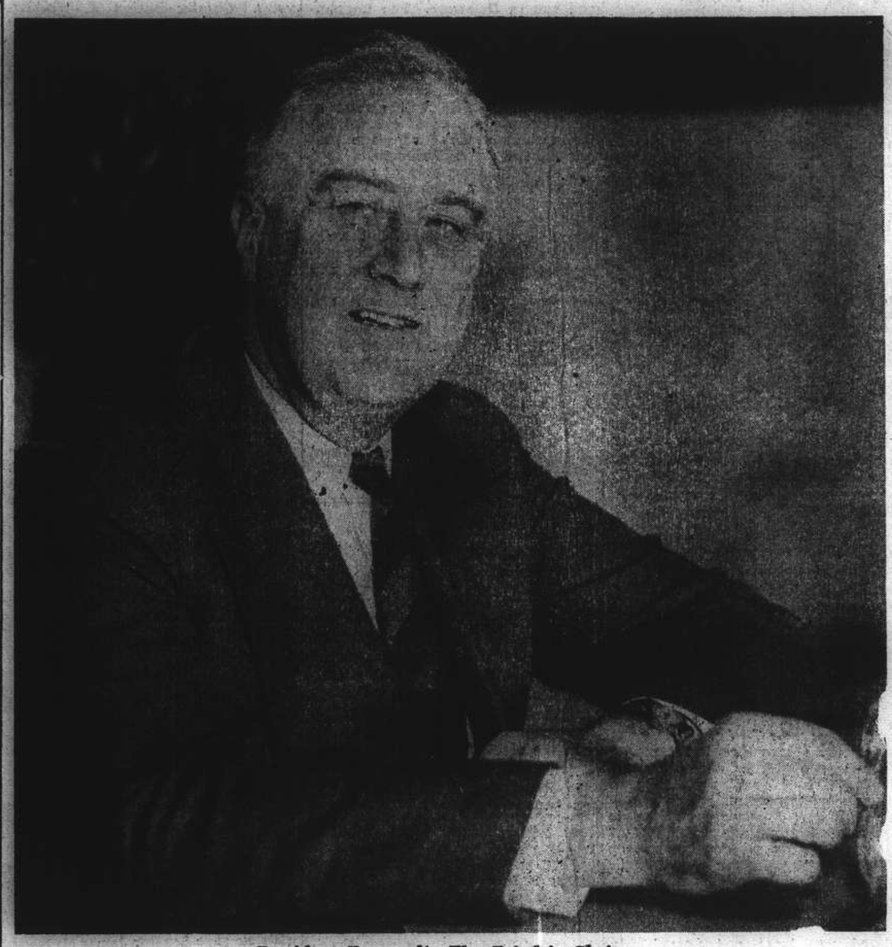
Wahsington, Nov. 6.

President Roosevelt's reelection with a greater majority than even the Democrats anticipated was interpreted today by foreign experts as strengthening the President's leadership in the Far East as well as Europe.

The triumph, they added, probably would result in renewed vigour on the part of the United States in opposing Japan's expansion in southeastern Asia.

Mr. Roosevelt's victory was well received in the Philippine quarters here which viewed him as the Filipinos' best partisan and more interested in the welfare of the islands than any chief executive since President McKinley.

Sr. J.M. Elizalde, Philippine Resident Commissioner here, has often privately told friends that President Roosevelt was the best.—United Press.



President Roosevelt—The People's Choice

The first President of the United States ever to be elected for a third term, President Roosevelt has smashed a tradition which is as old as the nation itself. At the polls yesterday the people of the United States decided that their need for him was greater than the tradition and voted him into another four-year term at the White House.

Churchill Pledges British Aid to Greek Nation

Britain's Ever-growing Strength in Middle East; Attacks Against Italy to Grow

London, Nov. 6.

AMID prolonged cheers in the House of Commons last night the Prime Minister, Mr. Winston Churchill, announced that, as a result of the Italian invasion of Greece, British bombing attacks against military objectives in Italian cities and bases in south Italy would continue on an ever-growing scale.

Mr. Churchill, who drew repeated cheers in the course of his long statement on the war situation, informed the House, among other things, that Britain had reinforced her army in Egypt to the limit of her shipping capacity with both men and weapons, and had afforded Greece substantial aid.

The early part of his speech was devoted to the air battles over Britain. He recalled that two months ago he hazarded a statement that British pilots would destroy three enemy machines to one and six pilots to one, and added: "So far it seems I was almost exactly right about the machines, taking the whole period, and I was very nearly right about the pilots, but of course if you could count the whole crew of large enemy bombers which have been brought down—all highly-trained personnel—then it would be more like 10 to one—so I have somewhat underestimated from that point of view the results that have been achieved.

"Obviously this process, combined with our rapidly increasing production, and production in the Empire and in the United States of America, of aircraft and airmen, is much the quickest road to our reaching that parity in the air which has always been considered the minimum for our safety, and thereafter reaching that superiority in the air which is an indispensable precursor of victory" (cheers).

The Prime Minister added, amidst further cheers: "Surveying the whole scene, alike in its splendour and in its devastation, I see no reason to regret that Hitler tried to break the British spirit by the blind bombing of our cities and our countryside."

A Grievous Burden

More serious than air raiding, went on Mr. Churchill, had been the "recent recrudescence of U-boat sinkings in the Atlantic approaches to Ireland.

Italians Bomb Little Town in Neutral Yugoslavia

Twenty-three Bombs Dropped in First Raid; Planes Drop More in Second Visit; Cabinet Meet Called Bitolj, Yugoslavia, Nov. 6.

ITALIAN bombing planes yesterday rained death on this little town in neutral Yugoslavia. Bitolj's population was thrown into a panic as the bombers dropped their deadly cargoes. The streets were thronged with people as it was the town's weekly market day.

Italian fliers were believed to have mistaken Bitolj, in extreme southern Yugoslavia, for Florina, Greece, which is 20 kilometres south of Bitolj. Military authorities ordered a complete blackout as night fell and approximately half of the town's 33,000 population was evacuated.

The Italian Consul in Bitolj telephoned the Italian legation in Belgrade and asked whether he should leave the city. He was ordered to remain and was told there would be no more bombing of the town.

Twenty-three bombs were dropped by three Italian warplanes in the first raid, killing two persons and wounding five. The raiders came a second time at 2.40 p.m. and dumped more bombs, killing seven people and wounding 30.

Fiat Planes

Twelve bombs fell near the railway station, four near the aerodrome, two near the military barracks, two in the centre of town, one fell 20 yards from the hotel and two bombs failed to explode.

The planes dropped 150 kilogram bombs in the second raid. They exploded with terrific force, blowing huge craters in the ground.

Military experts recognized the ships as Fiat BR-20 warplanes. They appeared from the south and returned in the same direction. It is believed they landed at the Koritza aerodrome.

More bombs exploded in the centre of Bitolj, near the railway station and the nearby division headquarters of the Yugoslavian army. Six bombs landed near an air raid shelter but caused little damage to it.

Many craters 18 feet deep were blasted out near the railway station and military barracks. Streets in the centre of the town were littered with broken glass.

Three persons were killed within 40 yards of the United Press office in the Grand Hotel in the centre of the city.

The United Press correspondent's room was filled with broken glass and bomb splinters.—United Press.

Cabinet Meets

Belgrade, Nov. 6.

An emergency meeting of the Cabinet has been summoned because of Italian bombing of Bitolj in extreme southern Yugoslavia, it was understood yesterday.

Word from Bitolj indicated that the Italian bombers had mistaken Bitolj for Florina, Greece, 20 kilometres south of the Yugoslavian town.—United Press.

Greek Evzones Said Smashing Through

Relentlessly Closing in On Koritza; Fall of Italian Base Seen

Athens, Nov. 6.

Greek "Highlanders" (Evzones) are relentlessly closing in on the Italian base of Koritza, according to reports from the northern front. Quarters close to the Greek General Staff stated that on the basis of news received yesterday it was "fully satisfied with the course of operations."

Despatches from the northern front say with bayonets and hand grenades the Evzones are smashing the Italian defences around Koritza.

The fall of Koritza would not only upset Italy's strategic plans but would be bound to have an important effect on the moral of the Albanians, who are already restless under the Italian yoke.

The encirclement of a considerable Italian force operating on the central front is said to be proceeding in accordance with plan. Elsewhere, it is understood, all recent Greek gains have been held.

Particularly good work has been done by Greek sappers in rushing light guns over the steep mountain country. The Italians have frequently been taken by surprise as a result of the rapidity of manoeuvre achieved by these units.

Air Raids

Three Italian bombers attacked Corfu early yesterday evening. Twelve bombs are reported to have been dropped, destroying several buildings and killing a number of people.

King George yesterday visited damaged areas in Piraeus and Athens. The capital was heavily bombed during the morning when it had its longest alert of the war.

Foreign observers in Athens have been deeply impressed by the sober caution of Greek official communiques which, if anything, err on the side of moderation. The Greek authorities are extremely anxious to avoid creating any feeling of overconfidence and foreign correspondents have been urged to avoid any temptation to exaggerate Greek successes which can speak for themselves.

Six heavy Italian bombers raided Piraeus and Phaleron Bay yesterday. Four Greek fighters drove off the raiders, none of whose bombs are said to have hit military objectives.

Royal Air Force officers have arrived in Athens to join the military mission already established here under Major-General Gambier Parry. Meanwhile men of all nationalities in Greece are trying to enlist in the Greek army as volunteers.—Reuter.

More Greek Victories Announced in Athens

New Series of Fortified Heights Captured; Italians Said Attacked by Own Tanks; Anti Tank Guns from Britain Prove Their Worth

Athens, Nov. 6.

GREEK detachments have captured a new series of fortified heights with semi-permanent defences on the western Macedonian front, according to a High Command communique issued here. Sections of the retreating Italians are stated to have been attacked by their own tanks. In the capture of the heights, the Greeks took two guns, mortars, a number of machine-guns and some prisoners.

The communique further announces that the Greek air force has successfully bombed aerodromes at Koritza and Argyrocastro, destroying a number of enemy planes on the ground, hangars and bivouacs. All Greek planes taking part in these bombing operations are claimed to have returned undamaged.

It is authoritatively learned that the main attack in Greece has not yet developed, but that it may be expected at any time.

Reports from the northern sector up to 6 p.m. Tuesday show that the Greeks are now fighting on the western side of Lake Mikrapresba. Further south the Greeks have taken a number of prisoners and two howitzers. In the Pindus sector, activity in the neighbourhood of Dystraton is thought to be connected with the Italian detachment which has been cut off. The Greeks have taken at least 100 prisoners in this area with machine-guns, wireless sets and other equipment.

Apparently the detachment, composed of crack Alpine troops, advanced between the Pindus mountains and the Epirus front. Italian planes dropped flour and forage on Methovon, believing that the Alpine detachment was there, but the Italians had disappeared from Methovon, and the gifts from the air fell into the hands of the Greeks.

British Anti-Tank Rifles

Everything is calm here, and the Greek headquarters, under its quiet and confident commander, is working smoothly as a well-trained team. According to an announcement by the Greek War Minister, nine tanks destroyed by Greek troops were destroyed by British anti-tank rifles supplied since the invasion began.

In Tuesday's air fighting two Italian bombers were brought down, it is officially claimed, and no Greek planes were lost. Civilians killed in Italian air raids since October 28 total 291 and wounded 690, according to the Ministry of Public Security. During the same period, it is stated, no military objective was hit.—Reuter.

Italian Division Threatened

Ohrid, Yugoslavia, Nov. 6.

Between 15,000 and 20,000 Italian soldiers representing an entire army division yesterday were said to be in a desperate situation and threatened with capture by Greek forces.

The northern column of the Greek forces, seeking to cut off and capture the Italians, crossed the Devoli river and advanced rapidly toward Cango along the main Biklista-Koritza Road, pursuing fleeing Italians, said reports to this frontier town.

Greek artillery, from new mountain positions dominating the road, shelled Italian positions around Koritza, said reports. The Greek advance followed a severe artillery duel which blasted Italian columns beyond the village of Progri, said reports.

The Greeks lost seven men killed and 30 wounded and the Italians lost 35 killed and 150 wounded in the ensuing fighting, said reports.

Two Italian officers, three motor trucks and quantities of ammunition were said to have been captured by the Greeks.

Greek anti-aircraft fire was said to have shot down an Italian bomber belonging to the famous squadron "A" near Progri. Advancing Greeks captured the village of Zagredec Tren in their advance along the secondary road from small Lake Prepsa. They were supporrted by motorized detachments and light tanks.

Forty Italian soldiers and two officers, as well as three tanks were said to have been captured on Monday night.

Rome Says Metaxas Line Pierced

Reports from Greece Give Lie to Italian Claims; Little Italian Progress

Rome, Nov. 6.

Italian forces have breached the Metaxas line at several points, according to reliable reports here yesterday from Albania. Despite the laconic nature of yesterday's official communique concerning operations in Greece, the reports also were substantiated by despatches from Italian correspondents on the Greek front. The correspondents report Greek forces have been forced to withdraw from several of their strongest positions.

Italian military circles consider that satisfactory progress has been made from the viewpoint of fortified positions taken and successful tactical manoeuvres accomplished, even though the amount of actual territory captured may yet not be imposing.

Italian troops reached a bridgehead on the Vojussa river after overcoming strong enemy resistance, said officials in the military headquarters here.

Italian planes on Monday bombed roads along which columns of Greek troops and motorized equipment were moving, officials said.

Greek military barracks and defence positions in the vicinity of Kastoria, Florina and Janina also were bombed, said the reports.

Italian dive bombers blasted Greek military objectives on the slopes north of Janina, along the Janina-Kalibaki railroad, said reports.

Other Italian air formations bombed the ports of Volo, Prevoze and Patras, said reports. One Greek enemy pursuit plane was said to have been shot down in an aerial encounter and another Greek ship was thought to have crashed.—United Press.

Report Denied

Sofia, Nov. 6.

Efforts by the Italian forces to pierce "the Metaxas line" appeared to have failed thus far, authoritative reports from Greece stated yesterday.

"The Metaxas Line" consists of rows of pillboxes and other fortifications strung from Parga on the Ionian Sea to Janina, taking advantage of the rugged terrain on the Albanian Greek border, from Florina to Kastoria.

The terrain was understood to be effective in preventing the use of Italian mechanized forces in the north although it was reported that some mechanized units were seen in action in the south.—Domei.

Italian Envoy Leaves

Rome, Nov. 6.

Official announcement was made here yesterday that the Italian Minister at Athens, Mr. Emanuele Grazzi, accompanied by the staff of the Italian Legation and Italian consular officials in Greece, left the capital in a special train for home.

It was expected that the train would reach the Yugoslav frontier sometime yesterday afternoon.—Domei.

Italians Finding Themselves in Plenty Of Difficulty in Greek Campaign

"Unfavourable" Weather Only Holding Up Mussolini's Troops; Nazi Help May Be Needed

London, Nov. 6.

It is strange that, while unfavourable weather has held up the Italian advance into Greece, according to Italian communiques, it does not appear to have interfered with operations of Greek troops, who have been successful in the central area, writes Reuter's Diplomatic correspondent. The Greeks claim to have captured some hills at the point of the bayonet, and have taken at the same time prisoners, tanks and guns.

Whatever the truth as to the actual results of the fighting, one indisputable fact emerges from the claims of both sides, that is, that after a week of war the Italians have made no impression on Greek defences. Indeed their only successes have been by acts of frightfulness in true Nazi fashion, in bombing undefended towns and peaceful civilians.

In one respect, however, they have out-Nazied their tutors, for there is circumstantial evidence to show that Italian bombers have borne Greek markings, and in one case, according to an Athens report, British identification marks.

So far there appears to have been no open move by Germany to supplement Italian action by pressure through Rumania or Bulgaria or Turkey. Had there been proper collaboration between the Axis Powers, it is probable that their efforts would have been synchronised to make them effective.

This lack of coordination confirms the belief in many quarters that the Italians were precipitate in their action because they disapproved of Hitler's advances to the Vichy Government on the ground that they slighted Rome. True, Italian papers mentioned the possibility of Mussolini also seeing Marshal Petain, but nothing more has been heard of the interview, and now both the French and Italian press appear to have buried the hatchet in the Vichy Government, which is being violently attacked by both.

Having embarked on the Greek adventure, it now looks as if Mussolini finds that it involves larger issues than those he bargained for, and the sudden departure of Count Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, to meet Joachim von Ribbentrop, German Foreign Minister, at a Moravian shooting party suggests that he is seeking German aid to help Italy from an embarrassing position.—Reuter.

Willkie Goes to Bed Without Conceding Election Victory to Roosevelt

Republican Candidate Retains Smiling Good Humour Despite Adverse Results; McNary Gives Up

New York, Nov. 6.

Tired but fighting to the last, Mr. Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, retired for the night at 1.30 a.m.

Mr. Willkie, during his brief appearance in the ballroom of his hotel, which was jammed with 7,000 of his supporters, retained the same confidence and smile with which he made his campaign speeches throughout the country. He left the stand and returned to his suite still smiling.

When news that Mr. Charles L. McNary, Republican Vice-Presidential candidate, had conceded a Democratic victory was brought to him, Mr. Willkie blinked, but said nothing.

Swarms of his friends, however, rushed to the stand and shook his hand. They yelled, "You have made a great fight."

Mr. Willkie thanked each of them, but gave no indication that he was ready to concede defeat.

The crowd cheered and chanted, "We want Willkie." The crowd kept up the chanting, "Don't give up, Wendell!"

Mr. Willkie replied, "Dont be afraid," and "Never." He added that the principles "for which we have fought will prevail is as sure as that truth will always prevail."

Earlier, at midnight, when he was trailing by some 250 electoral votes, in a radio address to the nation, he said that he was "not discouraged by the results" received up to that time.

Mr. Willkie made 520 speeches before 10,000,000 persons during his hectic campaign.

No sign of the campaign strain was apparent on his features, however. He appeared rested and relaxed and displayed none of the anxiety he might feel regarding the outcome.

Seven thousand persons jammed the hotel ball-room downstairs where charts and loudspeakers were installed for announcing election results.

Mr. Willkie spent most of the night in his suite on the 16th floor where several friends and political associates kept him company.—United Press.

Attention in U.S. Turns to Congressional Elections

Incumbents Generally Successful in Efforts To Retain Seats; Gubernatorial Elections

New York, Nov. 6.

As the pattern of the Presidential election became clear, the attention of Americans turned to Congressional and gubernatorial contests. In the House of Representatives, incumbents generally appeared to be leading in their fights to retain their seats, while in the Senate incumbents also generally were out in front. Republicans were leading in efforts to oust Democratic Senators, however, in Nebraska, Ohio, Rhode Island and Wisconsin.

In Wisconsin, Mr. Fred Clausen, Republican candidate, was leading the veteran Senator Robert "Bob" LaFollette, Jr., Progressive candidate, in the fight for the Senate post.

Democratic governors were leading in gubernatorial battles in Connecticut and Massachusetts, and Republicans were to the fore in Illinois, Nebraska, Montana and Delaware.

The latest Senatorial standings by states follows:—

Arizona—Mr. E. W. McFarland, incumbent Democrat, 24,675; Mr. Irving A. Jennings, Republican, 9,241.

Connecticut—Mr. Francis T. Maloney, incumbent Democrat, 333,328; Mr. Fuji Cornell, Republican, 338,958.

Delaware—Mr. James M. Tunnell, Democrat, 31,068; Mr. John G. Townsend Jr., incumbent Republican, 30,438.

Idaho—Mr. Glenn Taylor Democrat, 54,440; Mr. John Thomas, incumbent Republican, 6,391.

Illinois—Mr. James Slattery, incumbent Democrat, 1,128,038; Mr. C. Wayland Brooks, Republican, 1,029,334.

Indiana—Mr. Sherman Minton, incumbent Democrat, 464,593; Mr. Raymond E. Willis, Republican, 443,283.

Kentucky—Mr. Albert B. Chandler, incumbent Democrat, 274,435; Mr. Walter B. Smith, Republican, 168,100.

Maryland—Mr. George L. Radcliffe, incumbent Democrat, 223,190; Mr. Harry W. Niel, Republican, 110,114.

Massachusetts—Mr. David Walsh, incumbent Democrat, 411,845; Mr. Henry Parkman, Jr., Republican, 295,562.

Michigan—Mr. Frank Fitzgerald, Democrat, 128,322; Mr. Arthur H. Vandenburg, incumbent Republican, 159,709.

Minnesota—Mr. John E. Regan, Democrat, 85,867; Mr. Henrik Shipstead, incumbent Republican (formerly Farmer-Laborite), 149,802.

Missouri—Mr. Harry S. Truman, incumbent Democrat, 689,866; Mr. Manuel H. Davis, Republican, 581,075.

Montana—Mr. Burton K. Wheeler, incumbent Democrat, 582; Mr. E. K. Cheadle, Republican, 249.

Nebraska—Mr. R. L. Cochran, Democrat, 37,009; Mr. Hugh A. Butler, Republican, 50,638.

Nevada—Mr. Key Pittman, incumbent Democrat, 3,938; Mr. Samuel Platt, Republican, 3,487.

New Jersey—Mr. J. H. R. Cromwell, Democrat, 267,742; Mr. W. Warren Barbour, incumbent Republican, 461,-306.

New Mexico—Mr. Dennis Chavez, incumbent Democrat, 14,891; Mr. Albert Mitchell, Republican, 9,402.

Without Opposition

Washington, Nov. 6.

Two Democratic Senators, 54 Democratic Representatives and two Republican Representatives were elected to Congress yesterday without being opposed in their state elections.

The majority of those Congressmen who were not opposed in the election campaign come from the Democratic "solid south."

The two Democratic Senators who were not opposed were Senators Charles Andrews of Florida and Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi.

Democratic Representatives elected without opposition were:—

Alabama—Boykin, Grant, Rogsall, Hobbs, Starnes, Harman and Patrick.

Arkansas—Gathings, Mills, Cravens, Terry, Norrell and Ellis.

Florida—Peterson and Bilbo.

Georgia—Pace, Camp, Vinson and Gibbs.

Kentucky—Gregory and Vincent.

Louisiana—Brooks, Mills, Allen, Herbert, Boggs, Sanders and Plauche.

Mississippi—Rankin, Doxey, Whittington, Ford, Collins, Colmer and McGehee.

North Carolina—Kerr.

Tennessee—Courtney, Pearson and Davis.

Texas—Dies, Beckworth, Rayburn, Lanham, Johnson, Lesdon, Johnson, Mansfield, Poage, Lanham, Kleberg, Thomason, Mahon and Russell.

Virginia—Bland, Darden and Buren.

Republican Congressmen who were unopposed were Harry Englebright and Bertrand Gearhart, both of California.

Senator Harry Byrd, Democrat of Virginia, was virtually unopposed. His only opponent was a Communist candidate who was expected to receive only a negligible vote.—United Press.

Emigrants, Soviets to Mark Anniversary

Russian Churches to Hold Masses for Dead Patriots

November 7—today—the 23rd anniversary of the October Revolution in Russia will be both mourned and celebrated in Shanghai. The mourners will be the Russian emigrants, for whom this revolution has meant exile during the past two decades.

A special committee, composed of young Russians of various organizations here, has issued a manifesto in connection with the anniversary, announcing the programme which will be carried out during the next few days.

There will be a mass at the Russian Cathedral in Rue Paul Henry at 7 p.m. today when prayers will be offered for all those who fell in struggle against the Bolsheviks. Two broadcasts, tomorrow and on Saturday at 9 p.m., will be given over the Russian Broadcasting station (740 kilocycles) and these will be devoted to the struggle against the Soviets. The Russian anti-communistic society will hold a special meeting at the Sokol Sporting Association in Weihaiwei Road on Sunday evening, the entrance being free to all emigrants here.

The Soviet citizens in Shanghai meanwhile, will celebrate the affair with pomp by holding a five-day ball at the American Women's Club. This will start today at 7 p.m. and is sponsored by the Shanghai Soviet Citizens' Club. It is reported that citizens of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania have been invited to attend.

Several exhibitions of Soviet films will be given, the first to be at the American Women's Club tomorrow when "High Award" will be screened. This will be followed with dancing. On November 9, "Lenin in 1918," it reported, will be shown to the public, while another film, as yet untitled, will be presented on Sunday and Monday.

"Stranger On the Third Floor," which opened at the Nanking Theatre yesterday afternoon, is an interesting, though rather morbid study of a man's inner reactions to a murder he had not committed although circumstantial evidence points at him as the killer of another man. The picture presents two comparative newcomers, Miss Margaret Tallichet and Mr. John McGuire with all the possibilities to show the world that they are good players and there is no doubt but that they score. "The Stranger" is enacted by Mr. Peter Lorre, the bulgy-eyed German star who made theatre public horror-conscious with his performance of "M" several years ago. In this film, however, Mr. Lorre's role is rather small, but as usual he manages to acquit himself admirably in the part of a pathetic madman, who turns into a murdering maniac the minute his freedom is threatened. His appearance, too, suited the role well and many probably shivered as he hovered in the darkness, without uttering a syllable, ever wearing an expression of madness and fright on his face. Mr. McGuire, around whom the whole story centres, did a good job of his role and his sufferings, which are given to the audience in the form of dreams and thoughts, will surely help him to attain bigger things in Hollywood. In addition to being a good actor, Mr. McGuire possesses good looks, one of the main factors to make a player popular—with the weaker sex, of course. Miss Tallichet, another new face on the screen, was as pretty as she was emotional and the public will agree that she was good at both. The scene, where the madman realizes that she has been lying to him and proceeds to strangle her, will chill the audience by its horror as one of the most realistic ever to be done. There is really no villain in the cast, but Mr. Charles Halton deserves full credit for one of the nastiest performances seen on the screen for some time.

The main feature is preceded by three shorts of which "Vatican of Pius XII," a March of Time short, unveiled the mysteries surrounding the Papal domain and showed the audience its beauties for the first time.—I.M.

"The Return of Frank James"

Frank James	Henry Fonda
Eleanor Stone	Gene Tierney
Clem	Jackie Cooper
Major Rufus Todd	Henry Hull
Bob Ford	John Carradine
George Runyan	J. Edward Bromberg
McCoy	Donald Meek
Station Agent	Eddie Collins
Judge	George Barbier
Pinky	Ernest Whitman
Charlie Ford	Charles Tannen
Randolph Stone	Lloyd Corrigan
Prosecutor	Russell Hicks
Preacher	Victor Kilian
Colonel Jackson	Edward McWade
Ray	George Chandler
Bystander	Irving Bacon
Sheriff	Frank Shannon
Nellie Blane	Barbara Pepper
Watchman	Louis Mason
Mose	Stymie Beard
Actors	William Pawley, Frank Sully
Officer	Davidson Clark

In this sequel to "Jesse James," now showing at the Grand Theatre, there are two dominant personalities—Mr. Henry Fonda, once again brother of the murdered Jesse, whose unrelentless pursuit of his brother's murderers is the theme of the film, and Mr. Henry Hull, still the fire-breathing, quick-tempered writer of "Take 'em out and shoot 'em down like dawgs" editorials and firm friend of the James boys. For the benefit of those whose memories, as far as films are concerned, may require a little jogging, and for those who may not have seen "Jesse James," Twentieth Century Fox made certain that everyone knows what the film is all about by opening with the final scene in the first picture in which Jesse (Mr. Tyrone Power in probably his shortest film appearance) is shot down from behind by the two Ford brothers (Mr. John Carradine and Mr Charles Tannen), all of which makes it quite easy to understand why slow moving, tobacco chewing, drawling Frank James forsakes his little farm and assumed name and sets out on a long chase to finish off his brother's murderers. This film, fine and stirring in its realism as "Jesse James," of which the splendid colour photography is a notable part, is replete with thrills and there is plenty of humour to leaven the somewhat macabre appearance of Frank as his quest to kill two men takes him through the rugged grandeur of the American Rockies, the beauty of which is enhanced by colour photography. Strangely enough, Frank keeps his hands clean of murder while avenging his brother's death and is able to finish a free man after a court trial in which Mr. Hull's vivid personality and fiery repartee leave judge, jury and opposing counsel, as well as the audience, amazed that such a flow of violent abuse can come from one mouth is such a short space of time. Also in the picture are Mr. Jackie Cooper, whose portrayal of Clem, a boy befriended by Frank, is quite good, and Miss Gene Tierney, as Eleanor Stone, probably one of the earliest sob-sisters, who is quite attached to the romantic Frank, who, however, is still unattached as the film ends. "The Return of Frank James" is a splendid sequel to "Jesse James" and is recommended as a film that will thrill and amuse.—E.S.

★Churchill Pledges British Aid

The fact that we cannot use the south and west coasts of Ireland to refuel our flotillas and aircraft, and thus protect trade by which Ireland as well as Great Britain lives (cheers)—that fact is a most heavy and grievous burden and one which should never have been placed on our shoulders, broad though they be" (further cheers).

Mr. Churchill intimated that during last month Britain's flotilla strength had been at its lowest point. The threat of invasion had to be met, great forces were maintained in the Mediterranean, and escorts had to be provided for the protection of innumerable convoys. This had imposed upon the Navy a gigantic task. "However," he added brightly, "this period of stringency is perhaps past. Fifty American destroyers are speedily coming into service just when they are most needed, and the main flow of new construction started at the outbreak of war is now coming along.

Shipping Tonnage

"In spite of serious losses, we have still very nearly as much shipping tonnage as we had at the outbreak of war, and a great deal of neutral tonnage, which used to trade freely with us, is now under our control. Moreover, our U-boat hunting is still having its success. Two more German U-boats have been sunk in the last two or three days on the western approaches, one of them the U-boat which sank the Empress of Britain (cheers). We have a number of their crews who have been saved as prisoners of war."

Declaring that he had no doubt that British shipping was able to carry all vital supplies of food and munitions which Great Britain would require, Mr. Churchill said that next year Great Britain would have to expect still heavier U-boat attacks. We are making immense preparations to meet it," he added with emphasis.

Continuing, he said: "We have to look a long way ahead in this sphere of war. We have to think of the years 1943 and 1944, and the tonnage programme we shall be able to move across the oceans then if the enemy do not surrender or collapse meanwhile. Having dwelt upon this sea communications aspect rather openly and bluntly, I should not like to leave it without an assurance that I personally have no doubt whatever that we shall make our way through alright" (cheers).

Historic Victory

Turning to the army, which he declared was large and now highly mobile, Mr. Churchill declared that the fact that the invasion of Great Britain had not been attempted constituted in itself one of the historic victories of the British Isles and a monumental milestone on Great Britain's march forward (cheers).

Great Britain, asserted the Prime Minister, was engaged in forming and training a very strong army, and the like was being done in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India. Without such an army, forged, tempered and sharpened, which gave it so wide a choice of action, this war might be needlessly prolonged, and might even drift towards a disastrous stalemate.

During all this menace of invasion, so near and so deadly, Great Britain had never failed to reinforce her armies in Egypt almost to the limit of her shipping capacity, not only with men but with precious weapons.

Scores of thousands of troops had left this island month after month or had been drawn from other parts of the Empire for the Middle East.

The Middle East

Mr. Churchill said he could assure the House that the balance of forces on the frontiers of Egypt and in Sudan was far less unfavourable than it was at the time of the French collapse (cheers).

He added: "The power of the British Fleet in the Eastern Mediterranean goes a long way to restore the situation created by the collapse of France, and is a great guarantee to our friends and allies in Turkey of the unweakening power of Great Britain on the sea. Therefore, whether you look at the home front or at the Mediterranean theatre, I do not think it can be denied that we are far better off than anyone would have ventured to predict four or five months ago (cheers).

"Now a new call has suddenly been made upon us. The Italian Dictator, perhaps embarrassed by the florid flirtations of Laval with the German conqueror, or perhaps playing his part in some new predatory design, has in his customary cold-blooded way fallen upon the small but immortal Greek nation.

"Without the slightest provocation (cheers), with no pretence even at parley, Mussolini has invaded Greece, or tried to do so, and his aircraft have murdered an increasing number of Greek civilians, women and children, in Salonika and in other open Greek towns.

Help to Greece

"The Greek King, his Government and the Greek people have resolved to fight for life and honour (cheers).

"We have most carefully abstained from any action likely to draw upon the Greeks the enmity of criminal dictators. For their part the Greeks have maintained strict neutrality. I have already been at some pains to set forth the very serious preoccupations that dominate us both at home and in the Middle East. In the circumstances there is only one thing we can do—we will do our best (cheers).

"We have already established naval and air bases in Crete (renewed cheers), which will enable us sensibly to extend the activities and radius of the navy and air force. We have begun bombing attacks upon military objectives in Italian cities and bases in south Italy (loud and prolonged cheers). That war will continue on an ever growing scale (renewed cheers).

"I should like to say that other forces are in movement with a desire and design to help Greece to the utmost of our capacity. Having regard to our other obligations, I hope that I shall not be asked to give any definite account of such measures as we are able to take. If I were to set them high I might raise false hopes; if I set them low I might cause undue despondency and alarm; if I stated exactly what they were, that would be exactly what the enemy would like to know.

"We will do our best. That is all I can say. To that decision and declaration I generously interpreted I hope with confidence, to receive the approval of the House" (loud cheers).—Reuter.

★Electoral Landslide Makes Third Term Certain

losing control of the House of Representatives, incomplete returns indicate that the Democrats appeared to have made a net gain.

No Major Senate Changes

The Democrats appeared to have won four seats in Connecticut, two in Rhode Island, two in New York, two in Pennsylvania, one in New Jersey and one in Delaware. The Republicans apparently gained one in California, one in Oklahoma and one in New York.

No major Senate changes were indicated. On the basis of incomplete returns the Senate will consist of 68 Democrats—a loss of one—26 Republicans—a gain of one—one progressive and one independent.

A net Republican gain of two governors was indicated, but not assured. Democrats gained from Republicans the governorships of Rhode Island and Connecticut and were leading in Michigan, while Republicans appeared to be installing five Democratic governorships—Montana, Nebraska, Delaware, Illinois and New Jersey.

Willkie Sends His Congratulations

New York, Nov. 6.

Following his admission of defeat, Mr. Willkie telegraphed President Roosevelt: "Congratulations on your re-election as President of the United States. I know that we are both gratified that so many American citizens participated in the election. I wish you all personal health and happiness."—Reuter.

established a substantial lead over Mr. Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential candidate.

The Secretary of the Navy nominally is a Republican, but President Roosevelt struck out political barriers to appoint him to the Cabinet.

"The people of the United States, by a considerable margin, have chosen President Roosevelt to lead them through the grave times which lie immediately ahead," Col. Knox said.

"In giving him this victory they have clearly indicated their recognition of the fact, the United States faces far graver perils from without than from within," said Col. Knox.

Unmistakeable Mandate

"The election constitutes an unmistakeable mandate from the people to their president to continue a firm, vigorous foreign policy in defence of American interests and an accelebrated programme of national defence," the Navy Secretary said.

"Now that the elections are over it becomes the first duty of every good American to foster and promote in every possible way the national unity which will present to the totalitarian powers who have openly combined against us a solid, undivided front," Col. Knox said.

"We must prove that hope is vain."

Col. Knox's statement was especially noteworthy in view of the fact that the newspaper which he publishes, the powerful "Chicago Daily News," advocated the election of Mr. Willkie.—United Press.

Tientsin Volunteers Stand By

Tientsin, Nov. 6.

The British Volunteer Corps here has been ordered to be on precautionary standby duty as from 5.30 p.m. today while the British Municipal Council is attempting to reach a decision on the demands of the strikers of the Chinese constables of the British Municipal police force.

After two hours of deliberation the Council granted increases in the wages of Chinese constables ranging from $10 to $15 which represents an increase of 30 per cent., thus, virtually meeting the demand of the police force. The Council also decided to take under sympathetic consideration the salaries of the junior employees of other departments.—Reuter.

★Greek Victories Announced

Greek forces which crossed the Devoli river are driving towards the main Bilkista-Koritza road to make a junction with Greek forces who have advanced beyond Biklista on the main road itself. Should this move be effected the Italians would be in an extremely desperate position, said reports.—United Press.

Division Said Captured

Athens, Nov. 6.

Greek forces have completely encircled and captured the lost Italian column trapped in the mountains on the Greek-Albanian frontier, said reports here late yesterday. The column was said to be a division of Italian Alpine troops of about 12,000 men.

The Greeks also reported successes on other fronts. Greek and British bombing and fighting planes staged a surprise raid on the Italian aerodrome at Koritza, destroying seven planes on the ground, said reports here.

Italian planes bombed Sanos but the extent of damage was not reported.

There were no casualties in the Italian raid yesterday morning on Piraeus, said reports.

Athens was raided for second time yesterday at 10 p.m. but damage was said to have been small.

Concussions broke windows but the majority of the bombs fell in open fields, it was said.

Anti-aircraft fire answered the second Italian raid on Piraeus. Bombs fell around the harbour area but the attack was said to have been unsuccessful although there were a number of civilian casualties.—United Press.

Wet Election Day Does Not Deter Voters

Rain Area Extends from Great Lakes to Texas

Chicago, Nov. 6.

The weather for Election Day yesterday was cloudy, cold and rainy in many sections of the country, but it did not deter 50,000,000 American voters who promised to establish a record turn-out at the polls. The storm area centered over Michigan with cloudy skies and rain extending from the Great Lakes to Texas.

Light snows were reported in Nebraska, Iowa, the eastern Dakotas and in upper Michigan. The temperature was in the low forties, Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming reported fair but cold weather. The east coast was cool but generally fair.—United Press.

Last Witness in MacKellar Case

Defence Counsel Will Question Mr. Riggs On Alleged Confession

Mr. A. Loonis, local realty man, was the last witness called by the prosecution at the adjourned hearing before Mr. C. H. Haines, the Registrar, in H. M. Police Court yesterday of the preliminary examination of P. J. MacKellar, former travel department manager of the American Express Company alleged to have embezzled funds of the company.

Before the adjournment until Wednesday next, Mr. H. A. Reeks for the defence intimated that he would cross-examine Mr. D. S. Riggs, manager of the American Express Company and Mr. Edward Spokoiny, the company's accountant, regarding an alleged confession which they said was made by MacKellar. Mr. Riggs also will be re-examined by Mr. P. Watkin Williams for the prosecution, it was indicated.

During the afternoon session yesterday Mr. Reeks served notice on the prosecution to produce all cash vouchers signed by MacKellar regarding yen purchases for the travel department. Mr. Watkin Williams also served notice on Mr. Reeks to produce the original of a letter which Mr. Loonis said he received from the Norddeutscher Lloyd regarding passages. He told the court that he handed the missive to MacKellar at the American Express Company. Mr. Reeks observed with some acrimony that the prosecution was accusing MacKellar of purloining the letter. Mr. Haines remarked that it should be presumed that the letter would be in the files of the American Express Company.

Mr. Pan, paying teller of the company who testified regarding payments for passages, was followed into the witness-box by Mr. Loh Chia-vung, typist of the company, who was called to prove documents he had typed and prepared from bills and drafts and who in turn was succeeded by Mr. Chen Hui-ne, a clerk of the company. The last Chinese witness called was Mr. Zau Thong-ming assistant paying teller.

The Last Witness

Mr. Loonis, who was the last of the thirteen witnesses for the prosecution, said he visited the American Express Company on two occasions in the early part of 1939, when he saw MacKellar to whom he said, he paid £400 in sterling notes to purchase two first class return tickets for Mrs. Loonis and their daughter to proceed to Genoa. Owing to the war, he explained, the passengers were unable to utilize the order for return tickets on the Norddeutscher Lloyd and witness wired funds for their return via America. He applied to the Norddeutscher Lloyd for a refund of the return passages and got a refund less certain deductions including one of commission paid to the American Express Company by Norddeutscher Lloyd, which he was told to claim direct from the American Express. He went there in October, 1939, and left with MacKellar a letter he had received from the Norddeutscher Lloyd.

Continuing, witness said MacKellar said he would investigate the matter. His wife and daughter returned to Shanghai at the end of November, 1939, witness said, adding that three months ago he called at the American Express and asked MacKellar if a settlement was ready and MacKellar replied that he would look up the papers and get in touch with witness. Witness heard no more from him.

Hongkew Reverts To Normal

Japanese Officer Said to Be in Serious Condiaion; No Arrests Made Yet

The north of the Soochow Creek area returned to complete normal shortly before noon yesterday after extensive searches for the attackers of Lieutenant H. Nakamura had brought, so far as it has been possible to learn, no result. The searches started soon after the shooting on Tuesday afternoon when Japanese authorities threw a cordon around the crime area, allowing no Chinese to leave before being thoroughly searched. This measure was continued, on a smaller scale, yesterday morning, all Chinese entering Hongkew being searched by numerous bluejackets stationed on the bridges.

The victim, meanwhile, was battling with death yesterday, the wound in the neck causing him to lose a large amount of blood. Although he was operated upon and the bullet was extracted, his condition remained critical and Japanese doctors were making every effort to save his life.

It was learned yesterday that the Settlement Police had not arrested anybody in connection with this crime. Reports had it that the Japanese had detained many on suspicion, but so far the attackers are still at large.

The Fourth Attack

The attack, the fourth against Japanese military members within less than one and a half months, took place at about 4 p.m. on Tuesday afternoon when the officer was walking in North Kiangse Road. As he neared Haining Road, a hidden gunman shot at him and the officer fell on the pavement.

The shots attracted Japanese Naval Landing Party and a cordon was thrown around the area within the next few minutes. Two Red Marias from the Reserve Unit of the S.M.P. were also sent out and Reserve Unit members took up their positions on the southern sides of all bridges from the Bund to Honan Road. Traffic was completely paralyzed north of the Creek, while all the Chinese pedestrians and passengers of various vehicles were minutely searched.

These measures were relaxed later in the evening, but periodical searches were resumed early yesterday morning, the North Kiangse Road bridge being ropped off, while stricter searches were made of the passengers travelling in the buses in Hongkew.

Attempt to Free Goods In Indo-China

Chungking Government May Make Move

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs at Chungking has now been asked to negotiate on behalf of merchants and native goods manufacturers in Shanghai whose goods worth thousands of dollars and stranded in Indo-China are not allowed to be transported to Hongkong or Shanghai. This is revealed in a telegram sent to the Chinese District Chamber of Commerce in Shanghai by the Ministry of Economics.

The information from Chungking is in the form of a reply from the Ministry to the Chamber here which some time ago appealed to Chungking and the Chinese Consul-General in Indo-China for help in securing the release of the goods which can no longer be sent to the Chungking-controlled interior in view of the recent Japanese move in the French colony.

Chinese merchants in Shanghai sent a representative to Indo-China to negotiate for the release of the goods. It was then reported that the governor of Indo-China gave permission for the goods to be removed to Hongkong and Shanghai so that Shanghai owners might not suffer losses. A later order was suddenly issued by the governor forbidding such a procedure. Chinese reports suggested recently that the French might have been influenced by the Japanese.

Drug Addict Sentenced

Koo Lien-sen, an unemployed copperswith, was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment yesterday by the First Special District Court, found guilty of having slashed his wife with a meat chopper after a quarrel. Police evidence revealed that being unemployed, Koo often asked his wife, a cotton mill worker to give him money and the requests were resented as the husband is a drug addict. On October 16, Koo slashed his wife after a heated dispute at their home.

Death of Nurse to Be Investigated

Parents Dissatisfied With Decision of Lower Court; Ask for Further Inquiry

The sudden death of Miss Li Yu-ying, otherwise known as Li Chih-ju late head nurse of a Chinese clinic at 536 Rue Bourgeat, which occurred on June 10 in her sleeping chamber is the clinic building and for which the president of the clinic, his son business manager of the institution and a doctor have been acquitted by the Second Special District Court is now being closely investigated by the Third French Kiangsu High Court in the French Concession, the procurator having filed an appeal against the decision reached by the lower court.

The high court has been asked to repeat the autopsy with a view to establishing definitely the cause of the death. The case has aroused wide attention among the Chinese here, especially since the aged parents of the dead nurse have made public their petition to the high court in full. In this petition the findings of the judicial doctor are contested, suggesting that the girl might have died as a result of violence. The parents do not believe the words of the judicial doctor on the basis of which the decision of the lower court was formed, and ask for change of venue so that another doctor may be ordered to hold the autopsy.

The appeal has been heard by the high court but in view of the complicated nature of the death, Judge Wang has postponed the hearing pending further careful investigations. Public interest is now centred around the 10 copies of new testimonies prepared by physicians contesting the results of the findings of the judicial doctor of the lower court. These testimonies have been submitted to the high court by the parents of the dead nurse.

It is alleged in the petition that fingerprints were seen around the neck and on the chest of the dead girl and that blood was found around her mouth. It is further alleged that the lower part of her body was naked. Her father, upon learning of the nurse's death, rushed to the clinic but he was not allowed to see the body, the petition states. It is further stated that there were two keys with which to open the bedroom of the nurse, one possessed by the nurse herself and the other by Lu Cheng-ching, business manager of the clinic.

It will be recalled that the business manager, his father and president of the clinic, and a doctor of the same establishment were tried many weeks ago by the lower court in connection with the case. They were alleged to have issued a death certificate without informing the French police beforehand, but they were all acquitted, the judge holding the opinion that the certificate had not been issued with criminal intent. An autopsy revealed that the nurse had died of sudden and acute heart trouble, but the certificate issued by the clinic said that she had died of apoplexy.

Chen Kung-po to Be Shanghai Mayor

Former Kuomintang Official To Take New Post

Mr. Chen Kung-po, president of the Legislative Yuan of the Nanking régime, was appointed Mayor of Greater Shanghai at a meeting held on Tuesday by the Executive Yuan, it was reported yesterday. Mr. Chen Yao-tsu was appointed chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, which post was vacated by Mr. Chen Kung-po.

Aged 48, the new Mayor has a long history in the Kuomintang, having served in the Chinese government before Nanking was taken by the Japanese. He is a graduate of two universities in China and holds an M.A. degree granted by Columbia University. In the past, he had served as president of University of Canton, head of the political department of the Military Affairs Council and Minister of Industry.

After joining the new régime, he was appointed a member of the Standing Committee of the Central Executive Committee, president of the Legislative Yuan, a member of the Standing Committee of the Military Affairs Council, and chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government.

The Nanking appointee is to succeed the late Mayor Fu Siao-en who was stabbed to death in his home in Hongkew recently by his own servant, who is still at large.

Thief Gets Five Years

A Chinese was sentenced to five years' imprisonment yesterday by the First Special District Court charged with participating in a robbery in which the American Radio Company in Bubbling Well Road was relieved of five imported radios. His accomplice is still at large. He was arrested while he was trying to pawn one of the stolen machines.

Shanghai Britons To Observe Nov. 11

Departure from Usual Observances to Conform To Order tt Home

A departure from the usual programme to conform with the order at Home is seen from a circular issued by the British United Service Association here regarding the observances on Monday, November 11, "The Day of Remembrance". The annual remembrance service has been dispensed with, but there will be a special service at Holy Trinity Cathedral on Sunday, November 10, instead of the customary Armistice Day service. The address will be given by the Very Rev. A. C. S. Trivett.

Poppies will be distributed to Britons before the end of the week for use on November 11, and only one wreath will be laid at the War Memorial on Monday morning. The wreath of poppies will represent the joint British national and other societies. At 8.30 a.m. the same day those desirous of attending, are invited to congregate in front of the memorial when the dean will offer a prayer. The usual wreath-laying ceremony will be dispensed with this year and those who usually place wreaths at the Memorial at this time, are asked to refrain from doing so this year and to donate the cost of wreaths to the Central British War Fund for the benefit of the Red Cross.

The usual British war veterans dinner and concert will not be held this year.

No Sale of Poppies

It was also announced that there will be no street sale of poppies, but every effort will be made to supply local Britons with poppies through the post for their personal use and distribution to British friends whom the Association has not contacted. Supplies may be had against indent direct from the offices of the Association. Table sprays are also available against indent made in writing. Envelopes for donations will be distributed with the poppies and donors are asked kindly to remember the prevailing rates of exchange and make their contributions accordingly.

It has been decided, after deducting purchasing cost of the poppies which is forwarded to the Earl Haig Homes, to allocate half of the proceeds of the poppy sales to the Central British War Fund for the benefit of the Red Cross Society. The balance will be allocated to the work of the Association.

The "Day Of Remembrance" is specially significant at this time and those who have lost their lives in this war and the last war and all those who have made the supreme sacrifice for their country will be honoured and remembered. The committee of the Association urge all Britons to wear a poppy throughout the day, thus identifying themselves with this outward tribute to "Our Glorious Dead".

The SHERRY HOUR...

Almost any afternoon from five to six these days you'll find friends gathering in someone's home for the Sherry Hour. It's a welcome change of pace from the more elaborate Cocktail party. For there is a mysterious something in the subtle flavour of fine Sherry that brings out the companionable qualities in people. Also it's quick and easy—hence informal. No mixing, no icing. Just open a bottle of Sherry, pour and serve to appreciative guests. (8)

And see that you serve...

Old China Residents Depart.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Vongehr Leave for U.S.

After a residence of nearly thirty years in China, Mr. O. E. Vongehr of the firm of Messrs. O. E. Vongehr & Co., Fed., Inc., U.S.A., Hankow, is retiring from the East. Mr. Vongehr came out from the United States in 1912 on the staff of the American Consulate in Tientsin, where he served for a period of six years. He then joined Messrs. Andersen, Meyer & Co., with whom he spent nine years, divided between their New York, Shanghai and Hankow Offices. Mr. Vongehr then started his own firm in Hankow in 1932 and has been principally engaged in the export of wood oil to America from Hankow and the Yangtze ports of Chungking and Wanhsien, where the firm has branch offices. The action of the Chinese Government in Chungking and creating a monopoly of the wood oil business has lately killed private enterprise in this direction. Captain E. C. Fry has been associated with Mr. Vongehr in Hankow for some years and is remaining there to wind up the business.

Mr. and Mrs. Vongehr, who have recently sold their house in the French Concession, are leaving in the ss. President Coolidge today. Mrs. J. B. Vincent, their eldest daughter, left in the ss. Monterey on Sunday last. Mr. and Mrs. Vongehr were well-known in the American community and will take with them the good wishes of many China friends on their retirement.

OBITUARY

Y. C. Hu

Mr. Y. C. Hu, chairman of the Shanghai Insurance Association and general manager and promoter of the Ning-Shao Life Insurance Co. Ltd., 356 Peking Road, passed away at 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, at his home on Hart Road. He was born on January 10, 1899 and was only 42 years old, when he died of cancer of the liver. He is survived by his wife, three boys and one girl. The eldest is 21 and youngest 11.

Beside being a leading life insurance expert, he was noted for his public spiritedness and his deep interest in all social, religious and Y.M.C.A. activities both at Ningpo and Shanghai. He had been at one time or another serving as general secretary, director and in various honorary capacities with the Ningpo Y.M.C.A., Hua Mei Hospital, University of Shanghai, International Relief Committee, the Ningpo Guild, Food Regulatory Commission and the S.M.C., etc.

Cluniehouse Impresses With Fine Gallop

Some Good Training Gallops in Spite of Drizzle; Magic Circle Shows Continued Improvement

By "The Chaser"

THE "early birds" that rose with the crack of dawn and turned up at the Race Course yesterday morning were greeted with a steady drizzle which caused them to seek shelter during the entire morning, but in comparison to the dreadful foggy morning of last Wednesday—when one could hardly see further than one's nose—it was indeed a fine morning.

All gallops were done on the training track which was rather sticky and which may be described as "holding". There was a slight head wind down the last quarter and this naturally tended to slow the gallops up by a second or two. There were, nevertheless, some very good times done during the morning, by both the Australian and China ponies.

Cluniehouse, the pony on which by virtue of his favouritism for the Champions, attention is centred, was one of the many ponies that were taken out for a gallop. He was ridden by his jockey, Striker, who was quite content to send him over a slow mile. His time 2.20.3 is nothing to shout about, but his finish was that of a true champion, coming home hard on the bit and full of running in 31 flat. His last quarter was one of the best of the morning. His last half mile was 1.04.

Doubtful Starter

Busted Straight was moving in fine style after taking 2.17.3 for a mile, with a final quarter of 32. He is entered in the Criterions but is doubtful that he will start there, as although he was a winner last week I do not think he can match his speed with such ponies as Cluniehouse, Hindhead, Cordon Rouge, Vim and other ponies of such calibre.

Vim, who did his mile in 2.21, last quarter 31.2, will also give the Criterions a miss. Not that the owner is afraid of the other cracks but probably just to make sure that he qualifies for the classic. His gallop of yesterday was quite an attractive one as he was moving in magnificent stride and was not touched in any way to finish in 31.2.

Although Rain did not finish too well in 33.2, the time of his whole gallop, over the distance of a mile and a quarter, of 2.50 must be considered very good. This pony does not appear to be at his best form at the moment, which is a great pity as many are of the opinion that at the height of his form he is quite capable of giving the Spring Champion a race. It will be remembered that he won the Spring Champions last year in almost record time.

Magic Circle Going Well

Another former "champ" to go well yesterday was Magic Circle, who, in doing his mile gallop in 2.15.2, did not seem to be a bit bothered by his old back ailment. His recent win is probably an indication that he is now well on the way to recovery and may soon take his place as one of the city's best again.

Merrylight was stretching beautifully at the finish after doing his mile gallop in 2.19. This pony is the picture of fitness and I do not think he will go through the five-day meeting without winning a race. Fairylight and Cherrylight were out together over one mile, which they covered in the time of 2.21. Fairylight entered the straight slightly behind but the pair finished together going easily.

Doc was a trifle disappointing when he wound up his 2.47 mile gallop with a poor quarter of 35. He was expected to run close last Saturday but failed to show any form. Liberty-light cracked off a mile in 2.16, but finished a bit tired in 36.

Remarkable Improvement

A remarkable improvement was noted in Radio Eve, who until yesterday was doing very poor gallops. His owners were rather surprised when the clock registered 2.19.3 for his mile, and his last quarter of 34 is the best he has done for some time. He may be worth watching during the Autumn Meeting.

White Willie and White Night did very useful gallops of 2.17.3 when they were sent out together. They finished strongly in 31.3. Flyaway has been laid-up for some time and his gallop yesterday indicated that he had a long way to go before he would be in racing trim. He did a mile in 2.27 with a poor last quarter of 37.

The two "Don" griffins, Federico and Ronco, were not very impressive in their gallops. The former took 2.21 for his mile, last quarter 34.2 while the latter did slightly better by taking 2.19 for his gallop, last quarter 34. Larne, who will probably start in the Shanghai St. Leger as second favourite, came home in 35 after taking 2.59 for his mile and a quarter gallop. He did not seem to have much more in hand although it is reported that he was not fully extended. National Bank cracked off a mile in 2.17 but finished miserably in 37

Tanda Looks Very Fit

Mr. Bubbins, sluggish as ever, was sent over a mile and a quarter which he covered in the good time of 2.54. His finish of 35 was very "so-so." Optimiste (John Sparke) and Un-Un-Un were out together over a mile and a quarter. They were clocked at 3.00 flat with a final quarter of 32.3. White Lancer seemed to have got rid of his shoulder ailment when he galloped over a mile in the time of 2.21.

Star Turn went easily over a mile and a half and recorded 3.17 for the distance, with a last quarter of 29. Tanda was the picture of fitness when he galloped over a mile and three quarter of which the last three quarters was done in 1.32. Merry Maid was sent over a mile. The time was 2.10, last quarter 29.

Football Goes on in Spite of the "Blitz"

In spite of all the hosts of Goering, football continues at Home with unabated zest. Here is a fine action study of the match between those old favourites, the Arsenal—the most expensive side in the history of the game at one time—and the Queen's Park Rangers. In the picture the Ranger's goalie dives to the feet of Drake, of the Arsenal, to bring off a spectacular save during the match at Highbury, which was won by the Rangers by three goals to two.

Stanford Marching Towards Rose Bowl

After a pitiful season last year, Stanford has come back into its own once again, and gained a sweet revenge over the Bruins of U.C.L.A. last Saturday, when they kept their unbeaten record intact with a 20-14 victory. The Indians are here seen in action against the Bruins in last year's classic, when the latter trounced them by 32-0.

P.T.H. Players to Appear In Recs Line-Up

Tivoniuk, Leriou, Kidby and Schneierson Expected To Play in Charity Match and Skottowe Cup Games

FOUR Public School players will wear Recs colours in the special charity soccer match scheduled between Tung Hwa and Recs on Tuesday at the Canidrome, it was reliably learned yesterday.

"Jinx" Tivoniuk, the outstanding right-half of the 1.T.H. team, Johnny Leriou, the School skipper and Ted Kidby, forward, are among the names included on the tentative line-up of the Recs team for the charity match. It is also likely that Vic Schneierson, the School goalkeeper who showed a return to form in the P.T.H. match against Tung Hwa last Sunday, will play between the sticks in the charity match.

The other six players, of course, are the pick of the Recs, and strengthened by the inclusion of the crack players of the Public School the combined effect should be a well-balanced and strong team.

Recs Tentative Line-up

The team is expected to line up something like this:—V. Schneierson; H. Madar, Jack; E. Tivoniuk, J. Leriou, Honniball; T. Kapustin, A. Symons, Wailey, E. Kidby, T. Aldeguer.

Moreover, it is believed that Public School players who are members of the Shanghai Recreation Club will wear Recs colours in the Skottowe Cup competition, thus strengthening the Recs to a considerable extent.

Undoubtedly, the Recs in this form will be the strongest contenders for the coveted symbol of Shanghai football superiority Improved in all three lines, the Recs will be a potent team, well-balanced and fast.

Ted Kidby is a clever forward with a strong kick and a better than fair knowledge of football. Lacking one man in the attack, the Recs will find his inclusion a tremendous improvement,

Imposing Half-back Line

The combination of Tivoniuk, Leriou and Honniball in the intermediate line, meanwhile, makes a half-line second to none in the city. There are better half-backs in the city, of course, but as a unit these three players will tower head and shoulders above all other combinations now on hand.

If Vic Schneierson continues to play like he played against the Tung Hwa last Sunday, he is also the logical choice between the posts. Moussasticoff, although experienced and level-headed, has lost a lot of his speed and has shown that he is not safe at handling the ball—allowing it to slip out of his hands.

Losing Doubles Pairs

The Japanese pair, Fumitero Nakano and Tsuruta, in action against Henkel and Gies, of Germany. The German couple won the two set match by 6-7, 6-4. Previous to this Nakano had beaten Gies in the singles, but Henkel's victory over Tsuruta gave the Germans the edge by two matches to one.

Tigers Defeat Lions By Two Goals In Closely-Contested Polo Match

Final Score is 8-6; Lions Now Eliminated from Tournament; Tigers to Meet Panthers on Sunday

By "The Chaser"

The Tigers earned the right to meet the Panthers on Sunday when they defeated the Lions in the second round of the Reinforcement Cup by the score of eight goals to six after a close and keenly contested match which produced quite a number of thrills. This being the Lions second defeat in the series they are eliminated from further play in the tournament.

The Lions had only themselves to blame for the defeat as their adversary allowed the winners to pile in a number of valuable points which they found impossible to level. Their magnificent rally of four goals proved that if they had only settled down to some really serious play in the earlier chukkers, the final result might have been reversed.

The winners dominated the situation only during the early part of the first chukker, after which they suddenly became disorganized and allowed their opponents to run rough shod over them, except in the last chukker when they attempted a "three-in" effort to equalize, which only fell short of two goals.

Colonel Hanby, with his valuable knowledge of the game, was the leading light in the Tigers team and with the assistance of Allison, was the most respected player on the field. These two received excellent support from Hope and A. V. Wills, Hanby and A. V. Wills combined into points galore for their side, while Allison smashed for the remaining goal.

The Lions started off very strongly but did most of the pressing by the better part of the first chukker, but suddenly without any good reason whatsoever they became disorganized and lost all sense of team play. The Tigers lost no time in taking advantage of the situation and sailed in three times, to convert each attack into a point.

The Lions were more settled in the second chukker and prevented the Tigers from scoring at all, while R.B. Moller tallied once for them. The third chukker was perhaps the best in the match as both sides were playing a hard game and the ball was kept moving all the time. Du Rivau eventually managed to score for the Lions, but the Tigers soon retaliated.

With the score standing at 7-2 against them, the Lions made a determined effort to at least tie the score, but the best they could do was to score four goals before the bell rang, ending the game. The Tigers were also able to break through the Lions' defence and scored through Hanby. Williams scored the first for the Lions when he picked a pass from Du Rivau, while the latter who had several shots at the goal from a distance was rewarded with two tallies, and C. R. Moller scored from a well-executed movement of the Lions.

The teams were:

Tigers: Colonel Hanby, Allison, Hope and A. V. Wills.

Lions: R. B. Moller, C. R. Moller, Du Rivau and Williams.

On Sunday at three o'clock the Tigers will meet the Panthers in the deciding game of the tournament.

Stag Function For U.S. Marines

Several Amateur Boxing Bouts Planned; And Free Beer, Sandwiches, Acts

A rousing stag party has been planned by the U.S. Fourth Marines for this Saturday in commemoration of their 165th anniversary, with the celebrations to be held in the spacious S.V.C. Drill Hall on Kiangse Road. Several amateur boxing bouts are being planned as the highlights of the evening's programme which will also provide for amateur acts, free beer and sandwiches.

Up to the present, the professional scrappers of the Corps have been monopolizing the limelight as far as boxing is concerned, but this Saturday, all and sundry are invited to step under the arc-lights and show their wares.

Not all-comers will be accepted, however, but those who have shown ability will be given a chance, provided of course, that suitable opponents can be found for them. All bouts will consist of two two-minute rounds. P. H. Uhlinger will be in charge of the boxing arrangements and the matchmaking.

Four Darts Competitions to Be Held By Police Club This Season

No Changes in Rules But Entrance Fees Raised; Ewo Trophy to Be Competed for as Usual

Following a meeting of the S.M.P. Police Club in order to elect a Darts Committee for the ensuing season, 1940-1941, the following were elected to serve on the committee:

Ch. Insp. W. H. Widdowson, Chairman; Sgt. A. E. Cornwell, Hon. Secretary; Sub. Insp. H. G. Biggs, Asst. Hon. Secretary; Sgt. G. J. McCaheey, Asst. Gaoler W. Read, Sgt. H. Austin, Sgt. J. Malley, Sgt. F. Peasgood.

It was unanimously decided at the meeting that there should be no changes in the rules this year except in the rates of the entrance fees. The first competition is for the coveted Ewo Trophy which will be competed for under the Shanghai Invitation Darts League. An entrance fee of $12 will be charged for each team and teams from any of the Police Canteen, Station, Section, Divisions, Police Specials, Fire Brigade, Defence Force Units and Civilian Clubs are eligible. Teams will consist of six players. The nomination of players will not be necessary but it is to be understood that no player may play for more than one team in the league. The league will be conducted on the single round round-robin basis, and played according to a schedule which will be published. A "match" will consist of three game of 1001 up. All three games must be played, as each game is valued at one point. The Trophy will be held by the winning team for the period of one year and miniatures will be presented to the members of the team and to the runners-up. A special prize will be awarded to the player with the highest individual game score.

It was also planned to hold an S.M.P. Paris Knock-out Tournament which may be competed for only by members of the various branches of the Police. Each team entered in this competition will comprise of four players, and all players must be serving members of the S.M.P., S.M.G. or Special Police. The nomination of players, as in the Ewo Trophy, will be unnecessary but no player is allowed to play for more than one team.

Points for this tournament will be scored as follows:

	Points
4 singles of 301 up. (each best of three games)	4
2 doubles of 501 up	2
1 team game of 1001 up	1
Total possible	7

The third tournament on the schedule is the S.M.P. Darts Championship for the Ruby Queen Trophy which is open only to members of the S.M.P., Gaol or Specials. The matches will be the best out of three games of 301 up.

The S.D.F. Gazette Singles championship for the S.D.F. Gazette Trophy is eligible to all players of the teams who entered the Shanghai Invitation Darts League, and this too will be played on the knock-out plan and best out of three games of 301 up.

Extensive Hockey Schedule Planned For Week-End

Thirteen Matches Slated for Men's and Women's Teams; Men's Sides Adopting New Names

HOCKEY will definitely be taking its place on this week-end's sports programme, with an extensive schedule of 13 matches having been planned for men's and ladies' teams. After making its debut last week-end, the men's Association friendly fixtures will enter their second week of play with another six engagements this Saturday and Sunday. Meanwhile, the main interest among ladies' elevens will be centred on the competition between the American School and the Shanghai Ladies Hockey Association.

Four men's teams will literally be going out to make a name for themselves this week-end. These will be the senior sides of the Hockey Club and the United Hockey Club, who have adopted names for their elevens in order to avoid the erroneous intimation of comparative strength through the use of the designation, "A" and "B".

The Hockey Club have divided their members into two even aggregations and will call these teams the "Harlequins" and the "Crusaders," both these names having been revived after a lapse of several years. At the same time, the S.U.H.C. will also be splitting their strength into two elevens, the "Trojans" and the "Spartans."

The reserves of the Harlequins and the Crusaders will form the S.H.C. "C", it being decided to retain this name for the third team in view of their fine record last season. The third eleven of the United, however, will be known in future as the United "Reserves." Up to the present, no titles have been found for the Police "A" and the Police "B", and it is expected that they will be known as such for the rest of the season.

Probably one of the most interesting encounters of the week-end will be seen when the Harlequins meet the Police "A" on Sunday. On their showing in their practice match last Saturday, the senior players of the Hockey Club should be able to cope with all opposition this season.

On Sunday, the high light should be the fixture between the United "Spartans" and the Police "B". As yet, the second Police team have not been seen in action, but it is expected that they are worthy opponents for the Spartans.

The United "Trojans" may have some difficulty with the Jewish Recs on Sunday as the latter side has been considerably strengthened since last year, which proved a successful one for the J.R.C. This will also be the first contest in which Waldman, who wore the United colours last season, will be playing against his former side.

The current ladies contest between the American School and the S.L.H.A. will see its third week of play this Saturday. Though the S.A.S. did not fare too well last week-end, they may be able to make some recovery in their next two fixtures. Despite losing three players through evacuation on the s.s. Monterey, the American School team are expected to provide the Greens with stern opposition in the senior match. The junior tussle will see the clash between the S.A.S. "B" and the Jewish School.

"Y" Boots Defeat A. C. Deuces

The "Y" Boots scored an overwhelming victory over the A. C. Deuces last night when they played the game which was postponed from Monday. The winners experienced no difficulty in trouncing the Deuces and won all three games with a fair margin to spare. Mrs. Sibel proved to be the best for the "Y" boots with a total of 291. Her single of 114 in the third game was the highest of the evening. The A. C. Deuces did not fare well at all and Mrs. Crow with a total of 261 was the highest scorer for the side.

Current Films

CATHAY.—"Forty Fathers."—Gripping tale of a fisherman girl who sells her body to get money to buy a boat for her father. Starring Tsuru Aoki, Ichiro Sugai and Sadao Maruyama. Directed by Heinosuke Gosho.

ROXY.—"Calling Dr. Kildare."—Another of the popular radio hookup to do with an old and young surgeon, ably played by Lionel Barrymore and Lew Ayres, supported by Laraine Day and Nat Pendleton.

GRAND.—"The Return of Frank James."—Sequel to Fritz Lang's "Fury" and dealing with the outlaw's revenge on the men who betrayed his brother Jesse. Starring Henry Fonda, Gene Tierney, Jackie Cooper, Henry Hull, John Carradine and Donald Meek.

KINGS.—"Stranger on the Third Floor."—Weird thriller built round an unknown murderer and a gangster reporter who has to find him to save himself from a trial for murders committed. With Peter Lorre, John McGuire, Margaret Tallichet, and Charles Waldron. Directed by Boris Ingster.

METROPOL.—"David Rose."—Did not measure up to the Metropol hill. It's a drama of strife, action and almost unbelievable situations as Pat and Jimmie carry on a never ending feud while the "Dumb" girl fans the flames. With James Cagney, Ann Sheridan, Pat O'Brien, Andy Devine and Helen Vinson.

PRINCE.—"Traitor Spies."—The latest offering of Soviet production, using the much discussed modernisation of farming in Russia as the theme, set in movie and music, making it enjoyable even to those who are not acquainted with the language.

GOLDEN GATE.—"Parole Fixer."—Fast-moving action drama, based on incidents in J. Edgar Hoover's amazing tale of crime detection. "Persons in Hiding," shortly just what happens when dicta reveals "systems get lax, with Wm. Barry, Anthony Quinn, Virginia Dale, Richard Denning, Lyle Talbot and Robert Paige.

CATHAY.—"Angels Wash Their Faces."—Wins one of their number is framed and sentenced to the penitentiary, the Dead End Kids go to town and prove that they can be just as "hardboiled" on the side of the law as they have previously been against it. With Dead End Kids, Ann Sheridan, Ronald Reagan, Bonita Granville, Frankie Thomas and Henry O'Neill.

UPTOWN.—"The Day The Bookies Went."—With Joe Penner, Betty Grable. They're off. Bowling laugh riot —Pigeons; ponies; taxis and toots.

Films Coming

"They Drive by Night."—Stirring, action-packed melodrama built round the men who risk their lives nightly in America's most dangerous business, driving the trucks that eat up the country's highways at miles an hour after sundown, carrying perishable produce to distant markets and waging bitter private wars as a sideline. Starring George Raft, Ann Sheridan, Ida Lupino and Humphrey Bogart, with Gale Page, Alan Hale, Roscoe Karns and John Litel. Coming to the GRAND.

"Another Thin Man."—William Powell and Myrna Loy co-starred again in the popular detective series as Nick Charles and Nora, his wife. This is William Powell's first appearance on the screen after a long absence due to his illness. Coming to the METROPOL.

"You're Not so Tough."—Boys will be boys, even if they are the Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys. This very human story shows them getting out to rob a widow but finally settling down to work for her. Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys, with Nan Grey, Billy Halop, Huntz Hall, Gabriel Dell, Bernard Punsly, Bobby Jordon, Henry Armetta and Rosina Galli. Coming to the NANKING.

"Down Went McGinty"

Akim Tamiroff comes soon to the Cathay in this smart political comedy.

"Down Went McGinty."—The surprise dramatic hit of the year. Dan McGinty, tending bar in a banana republic, tells how he rose from nothing to be governor of a state—to fall most astonishingly to his present position as the paid servant of the man who made and broke him. Starring Brian Donlevy, Akim Tamiroff and Muriel Angelus, with William Demarest, Allyn Joslin, Steffi Duna, Mary Thomas, Louis Jean Heydt, Arthur Hoyt and Thurston Hall. Coming Big Attraction to the CATHAY.

"Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet."—Edward G. Robinson magnificent in the kind of role only Muni has previously played. The dramatic and inspiring story of one man's triumphant fight against almost unsurmountable odds to conquer the deadliest of diseases. With Ruth Gordon, Otto Kruger, Donald Crisp, Maria Ouspenskaya, Montagu Love, Sig Rumann and Donald Meek. Coming to the METROPOL.

"Dance, Girl, Dance."—An intimate glimpse into the lives and loves of those girls of beauty, talent and ambition who strive for a chance at stage fame; a moving revelation of their tears and laughter, their hopes and disappointments, their courage and heart-break. Starring Maureen O'Hara, Lucille Ball and Louis Hayward, with Virginia Field, Ralph Bellamy, Mary Carlisle, Katharine Alexander, Edward Brophy, Walter Abel, Harold Huber and Maria Ouspenskaya. Coming soon to the NANKING.

"Brigham Young."—Epic story of the indomitable man who braved every kind of gander and disappointment to lead the Latter Day Saints across America's most inhospitable desert to their Promised Land, made an arid waste bloom like the rose and founded Salt Lake City and the state of Utah. Starring Tyrone Power, with Linda Darnell, Brian Donlevy, Jane Darwell, John Carradine, Mary Astor, Vincent Price, Jean Rogers, Ann Todd and Dean Jagger as Brigham Young. Coming to the GRAND.

"Swanee River."—Stirring and colourful drama based on the life story of Stephen Foster, the beloved American troubadour, filmed entirely in technicolour and featuring all his famous melodies. With Don Ameche, Andrea Leeds, Al Jolson, Felix Bressart, Chick Chandler and Hall Johnson Choir. Coming to the METROPOL.

"The Return of Frank James"

FROM SHANGHAI FOOTLIGHTS AND FILMS

"David Rose"

Directed by William Keighley after his recent visit to Shanghai, this picture is a "hot" one at the Metropol. James Cagney, Ann Sheridan and Pat O'Brien are the stars—also Andy Devine and Helen Vinson.

"Sporting Blood"

Owing to re-arrangement of the schedule of screenings at the Roxy Theatre, this Robert Young-Maureen O'Sullivan feature picture has been held-over, but it will be shown in the near future.

"Stranger on the Third Floor"

Mystery and thrills are combined at the Nanking Theatre today with Peter Lorre as the principal exponent. Associated players include John McGuire, Margaret Tallichet and Charles Waldron.

"Lucky Partners"

Admirers of Ronald Colman will note that he opens today at the Cathay Theatre in a 3½-star picture, with Ginger Rogers, co-starring, giving a bright performance—also Spring Byington and Harry Davenport.

Farren's Floor show

A smart entertainment bill, perhaps topping all those that have gone before, will be presented by the management of Farren's tomorrow night, tonight's excellent show being the last of the current offerings. Shrewd showman that he is, Mr. Farren is tipping off his artistes on new points in their routines and, it goes without saying, that they take full advantage of his suggestions. The Glamour Girls, headed by Suzanne, have several delightful, beautifully-costumed routines which will please; the Largos, acrobatic adagio trio, have another surprise "up their sleeves," while the dinner trio and Mike's music masters continue in their usual promising manner.

"Casse-Noisette"

For their first new production of this season, Le Ballet Russe has chosen an enchanting Christmas ballet, "Le Casse-Noisette" (Nutcracker), music by Tschaikowsky, which will be presented for the first time in Shanghai at the Lyceum Theatre on December 5, 7 and 8.

"Casse-Noisette" is one of the most colourful ballets. It is a real Christmas ballet, for there is a Christmas tree and all the holiday spirit in it. The symphonic music of Tschaikowsky is reckoned to be one of the best works of this famous composer. The music is light and agreeable, yet of a great symphonic value.

Le Ballet Russe takes especial pride in presenting "Casse-Noisette" to the Shanghai public. This ballet is a great success of the metropolitan stages and is considered one of the best exponents of the art of Terpsichore and symphony.

Claudette Sitnikova

Leading lady with the Russian Light Opera on Saturday in the Lyceum.

Popular Musicians

Highly important to the Harry Fisher Swing Band at the Roxy Night Club are the musicians Phil and Tony, accordeonist and drummer, both with a background of wide experience in leading night clubs of Europe. These two, together with Fisher, who is not only leader but an ace pianist, an arranger and a composer, and Fred Fobau, one of the leading violinists of the city, as well as a pleasing crooner, form a unit which has done much toward making the Roxy steadily popular with night club patrons who demand and appreciate the best in music.

Anniversary Novelties

Tonight marks the final night of the anniversary week celebration at the Bolero and in honour of the occasion Guy Roberts and his orchestra will offer something new in the way of novelty numbers. The personnel of the band includes the popular Geza and Gino, the two G-Men, K. James, vocalist and accordeonist, and the clever drummer, Jack. The floor show, special for the anniversary week observance, includes a young and talented Spanish dancer, Manuela, and the three Kulpa Sisters, dancers. Handsome souvenir programmes for all guests.

At the Jessfield

Out Jessfield way, the Jessfield Club retains the standard of entertainment and catering which it has set for years and the management points out that the premises are ideal for those who enjoy good music, relaxation and courteous, reliable service. Under the genial leadership of Roth, the orchestra renders latest musical selections from the United States, but many patrons prefer the older favourites, both European and American, which are played at the slightest nod.

Charlie Chaplin's "Great Dictator"

Filmed at Cost of $2,200,000; Written and Produced by Cinema's Comedy Star

For the first time in his career, says Theodore Strauss in the "New York Times," Charlie Chaplin speaks pronounceable words (this cuts out the precedent of the gibberish in one scene of "Modern Times" which formed his belated tribute to the arrival of "talkies") in the role of the great dictator though he is more chary of speech in the dual role of the little barber from the ghetto who, by mischance, is mistaken for the party of the first part. The barber, of course, will be the more familiar little fellow in derby, twiggy cane, size 14 shoes and baggy pants. All of which augurs well for "The Great Dictator" is playing in American theatres.

So does the remaining cast. Back to the Chaplin saga comes Paulette Goddard, the street gamin of 1935's "Modern Times" and a big girl now. The remaining cast will include Jack Oakie as that other blustering master of the double-cross, Napolini (get it?); Reginald Gardiner as one of the dictatorial aides; Billy Gilbert as a henchman who couldn't possibly be mistaken for a protuberant Mr. Hermann Goering, and such other standbys as Emma Dunn, Henry Danieli, Bernard Gorcey, Carter DeHaven, the late Maurice Moscovitch and many others parading against sets of pomp and circumstance rivalling of Nuremberg Party Congress.

It is further disclosed that for his first film in five years Mr. Chaplin dug into his purse for the amount of $2,200,000 not including his salary as star; that, once the idea had come out of the incubator and actual work begun, the production took 300-odd days to complete, and that, as usual Mr. Chaplin wrote the story and dialogue, played the two leading roles, directed the film, edited and scored it. The camera crews shot more than 500,000 feet of film of which the public will see two and a half hours' worth.

Long Time in Making

Mr. Chaplin began actual writing on the story on Jan. 1, 1939, and completed it by April 1. Work on miniatures was begun thereafter and they were photographed beginning June 10, sound tests began on June 20. The final shooting script was ready by Sept. 5 and final casting completed simultaneously. On Sept. 9 the cameras began to turn continuously until March 9, 1940. Then began the lengthy process of cutting and editing and scoring.

Finally, and in answer to recurrent reports that the turn of events since the picture was begun caused the producer no small concern, Mr. Chaplin is quoted as saying that not in one jot has he found it necessary to revise his original concept. It is said, however, that had Italy remained neutral the film probably could not have been shown in an England desperately trying to avoid provocation of a potential enemy.

Shushlin Recital

Next Thursday, Vladimir Shushlin, Shanghai bass, formerly of the Russian Opera, will appear in recital in the Lyceum Theatre in an extensive and varied programme of classical offerings. The Municipal Orchestra, under the baton of Maestro Paci, will accompany, while additional assistance is to be rendered by Prof. B. Zakharoff and Prof. Arigo Foa. The concert is under the management of A. Petuhov.

Tino's Orchestra

Smooth, easy dancing is the slide rule by which entertainment is measured at D.D.'s, for which, of course, Tino and his group are responsible. The quartette work smoothly together and, each being competent on a numer of instruments, spells another. Tino, himself, is a drawing card with his crooning and he always obliges when requests are sent him. The Russian cuisine is distinctive.

Schumann and Brahms

In the world of screen and theatre it is a common belief that "music is the food of love," or, at any rate, that musicians more than most of us, are inclined to fall in love very rhapsodically if not always quite happily. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer have brought the screen rights of "Song of Love," a book by Bernard Schubert and Mario Silva, which tells something of the tale of Robert and Clara Schumann and Johannes Brahms.

Schumann was born in 1810, and as a youthful composer continued his musical studies in Leipzig under Friedrich Wieck. It was here that he fell in love with the master's daughter, Clara, already a pianist of international reputation, and married her in 1840. Schumann's end was a sad one. His mind became affected, he attempted suicide in 1854, and died in an asylum at Bonn in 1856. Clara survived him by 40 years. Her widowhood was lighted by the fervid friendship of the famous composer, Brahms.

Brahms as a young composer attracted the attention of the considerably older Schumann. They became close friends and the youth fell deeply and romantically in love with Schumann's wife, fourteen years his senior. This love lasted until the day of his death. He survived Clara by one year, she dying in 1896 and he in 1897. Although she was free for so long, they did not marry and his love continued to express itself in an unshakable devotion, although there was more than one quarrel between them.

Nightly at the Park Hotel

Supporting June West, Kay continues as an admirable foil at the Park.

Farren's Performer

Suzanne heads the ballet at this popular night club.

R.K.O.'s "They Knew What They Wanted"

Having overcome internal dissension and the frowns of the Hays office, the third screen version of Sidney Howard's "They Knew What They Wanted" has been completed at RKO with Carole Lombard and Charles Laughton heading the cast and Gorson Kanin directing. The dissension, short-lived and turmoil incon-sequential by the studio, consisted of disagreement between Kanin and Laughton regarding the actor's characterization. It reached its height when Laughton and the director, both in high dudgeon, walked off the set late one afternoon. During the next day, a holiday, they settled their differences, however, and when filming resumed they delivered a joint apology to the rest of the company. Ever since, the studio says, they have been boon companions.

Staged in 1924 with Pauline Lord and Richard Bennett, "They Knew What They Wanted" has been filmed twice before (in 1928 as "The Secret Hour," a silent version with Pola Negri, and in 1930 as "A Lady to Love," with Vilma Banky and Edward G. Robinson), but neither time was the play accurately transposed to the screen, according to Kanin. The Howard drama dealt with marital infidelity in the Napa Valley in California (where the present company went on location) and ended on a cheerful note when the wronged husband not only forgave his wife, but welcomed the arrival of a child, even though it was not his own.

RKO's adaptation, by Robert Ardrey, makes Miss Lombard's misstep a violation of her betrothal, occurring before she is married, which permits the Hays office to view the offence with greater leniency. The "other man," played by William Gargan, has been modernized—in 1924 he was a "wobbly," but now he is a migratory worker. The doctrine of compensating moral value necessitates some suffering by the leading lady, and so Miss Lombard goes away to have her child, but the idea is strongly planted that she will return later to Laughton and happiness.

About the Great Ziegfeld

Billie Burke has very emphatically a place of her own on the screen. She is unique; here is no one in the least like her. Everybody recognizes her with pleasure when she walks on and flutters her eyelids to an accompaniment of amiable babble. But as is generally known, she has another claim to recognition, the claim of reflected splendour. She was the wife of Florenz Ziegfeld, whose Follies will be the subject of a forthcoming picture and who has already figured on the screen as the hero of "The Great Ziegfeld."

As Mrs. Ziegfeld, Billie Burke will turn author and write a biography of her late husband. In this she has been encouraged by Mrs. Will Rogers who has just completed the story of her own husband's life. The two women are great friends and Will Rogers was one of the most prominent stars under Ziegfeld's management.

Billie Burke has not always figured as a young middle-aged flutterpate in pictures. Although she was born in Washington, she spent a considerable part of her youth in England and appeared on the London stage. Old London theatre-goers will remember the marked hit she made in "The Schoolgirl," a musical-comedy with Edna May, the great and beautiful star of the immortal "Belle of New York." Now, the reference books surprisingly tell us that Billie Burke is 58. Her own recollection will doubtless be woven in with the memoirs of her husband.

"Meet John Doe"

Frank Capra and Robert Riskin, who have gotten their first independent picture, "Meet John Doe," under way at Warners, are filled with enthusiasm for the unit production system, which, Riskin says, has eliminated the spectre of executive interference. While Capra is directing the current production, Riskin has begun work on an adaptation of Cervantes's "Don Quixote," which will be their next film, to be followed by a life of William Shakespeare. The story details of "Meet John Doe" have been carefully guarded for fear of plagiarism, but it was learned this week that Gary Cooper appears as a bush-league pitcher who develops a glass arm and loses his means of livelihood, while Barbara Stanwyck plays a newspaper sob-sister and runs a column which involves Cooper in a circulation-building stunt.

"Fiski, the Broker"

For two nights only, Saturday and Sunday, the Russian Light Opera are presenting, "Fiski, the Broker" in the Lyceum. This excellent comedy, was performed last season before four full houses in the nature of Valia's gala. Marking the presentation will be the appearance of Claudette Sitnikova, being associated for the first time with this organization. She has just returned from a tour of the south and will be remembered for her fine voice when she sang with the grand opera company several years ago.

Others in the cast are Valia, Sinbodskoy, Nevskaya and Mouravieff.

At the Tower

Now that the Tower Trio, continuing as usual six nights weekly in their habitat, have established themselves as de luxe musicians at the tea concerts in the Cathay lounge, Saturdays and Sundays excepted, but including a Saturday tiffin performance, patrons of the Cathay could want for nothing more to regale and relax. The boys are competent, classically and jazzically, so much so that they go on the air twice weekly over XCDN. Their specialties in the Tower are a strong feature of their abilities.

Constance Bennett and Pat O'Brien parked their make-up kits at Columbia Studios to begin work in their new starring picture, "Passage West." The picture marks Miss Bennett's first assignment under a new long term contract at that major lot.

RETURNING SOON to METROPOL!

The covered wagon 20th Century-Fox used in "Brigham Young" travelled further than did those that made the epic trek in 1848 from Illinois to Utah. The 1848 ones covered 1,340 miles, Hollywood's prairie schooners, which were hauled trailer fashion by a fleet of 35 trucks over much of Utah, Nevada and California, clocked off 2,407 miles. Brigham Young took eight months for the the journey; the studio spent more than two years, from the time the research began until the last foot of film was exposed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters for this column should be addressed to the EDITOR, NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS OFFICE, 17 THE BUND, SHANGHAI, and to ensure secrecy, marked "Letters to the Editor."

Heroic Greeks:
Reader's Practical Sympathy

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—The gallant manner in which the Hellenes are defending their Fatherland, the cradle of European civilization, against an absolutely unprovoked invasion of dark forces called fascists, fills me with respect and admiration.

I propose that the "North-China Daily News" open a fund, or a subscription list for the benefit of the Greek Red Cross, in order to assist the civilian population of the valiant Hellenic Nation who so bravely resist the invasion of their country.

I beg to enclose herewith my small contribution in form of a cheque for Sh.$.50 which I would request you to transmit to the Greek Consulate.

Race Ponies:
A Jockey's Behaviour

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Last Saturday at the races I noticed one of the jockeys on two occasions hit the pony he was riding over the head with his whip. In each case it was after the finish of the race, in one case the pony having won. It is regrettable that such lack of horsemanship be seen on the Shanghai course.

According to all the rules of horsemanship the whip should only be used for two purposes (1) as an artificial aid where the leg aid is not sufficient and as such to be applied in the same place as the leg aid (2) as a means of punishment, in which case it should be applied immediately after the offence so that the pony connects the punishment with the offence, and only then when the rider is absolutely certain that an offence was committed.

In the case on Saturday the race was finished and therefore there was no need to urge the pony further, and in any case whipping on the head or indeed any part of the forehand will not act as an aid to impulsion. If the pony was guilty of an offence (none was apparent) then why not whip him in the proper place instead of on the head, which would tend to make him head-shy with a possibility of giving injury leading to poll evil.

It is to be hoped that there will be no further exhibitions of this sort during the coming meeting.

Rubber Dividends:
And Exchange Restriction

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Influenced by the sound statistical position of the Rubber Estates and their potential earning capacity, local rubber shares advanced sharply at the beginning of this year. Up to a certain point, the rise was well justified by conditions. The shares, even at the higher level of prices, offered a fair prospect and attracted quite a number of bonafide investors as distinct from speculators. It now appears that estates situated in British territories are debarred by exchange restrictions from remitting all their profits to Shanghai. Their dividend, therefore, will probably fall much below what was anticipated and would yield but a poor return to those who had purchased the shares at much higher than present prices. No fair-minded person would resent any restriction dictated by national interests, but there is one point which needs stressing. The estates will be allowed to remit only a certain percentage of their average remittances during the three years 1937/1939. Two out of these three were lean years and, moreover, the estates were obliged during the whole of this period to retain a considerable portion of their earnings to meet the urgent need for replanting which had been neglected during the critical times of previous years. It is thus obvious that the remittances this year from the estates in question and, consequently, the dividends which can be paid locally, will fall far short of expectation and will, in all probability, represent only a small proportion of the profits made. This is going to be hard on many an investor. One would be loath at this juncture to suggest petitions of what might appear a selfish nature, but perhaps the above considerations might be placed before the authorities concerned and some modification of the present ruling prayed for. It is to be hoped that the agents of these companies will give the matter their attention.

Meanwhile, as things stand at present, the unremitted and evidently, the major part of the profits earned by the companies is retained on the estates and it would be a good idea if such funds are distributed among the shareholders in the form of dividends payable in Singapore. Perhaps, also, arrangements could be made to enable shareholders who wish to do so to invest such dividends in War Certificates; and British shareholders would, I am sure, gladly avail themselves of the opportunity.

B.B.C. Broadcasts:
Their Varying Quality

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—I wonder whether it is well known that the B.B.C. transmission directed to the Pacific can be heard strongly in Shanghai during the late afternoons. The times and wave bands are as follows:—

S'hai Time	Band	Reception
p.m.
2.10	25 & 19m.	Weak
4.30 (News)	25 & 19m.	25m—good
5.30 (News)	25 & 19m.	19.82m GSF-Excellent.—"Radio News Reel"—an Interesting comentary on the latest news.
6.10—Close Down.

The morning news can again be heard at 6.45 a.m. on GSB 31.55—reception varies, depending on the amount of local interference.

Summary of B.B.C. News Broadcasts audible in Shanghai.

S'hai Time	Band	Reception
a.m.
6.45	31 & 25m.	Fair to good on on 31m, relayed from Australia on 25m.
8.30	31 & GSA 49.50m.	Erratic.
p.m.
4.30	25m.	Fair to good.
5.30	19m.	Excellent.
7.00	16 & 13m.	Excellent on 16m.
9.00	16 & 13m.	Weak, but is relayed by Hongkong on 31m.
12.00	31 & 25m.	Excellent on 31m.

N.B.—London is usually heard on two places close together in the 16 and 19m. bands; one weak, one loud,—be sure to find the stronger.

I trust you can see your way to publish this letter, for doubtless more readers would listen to the B.B.C. news if they but knew where and when to get it—they should of course subscribe to "Radio Flash"!

Clothes Wanted:
For Refugees

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—It is now one week since I have published an appeal to evacuees through the courtesy of your valued paper, asking for superfluous clothes etc. to be sent to the Clothing Fund of this Committee, and I am very pleased to state that the response has been more than gratifying.

Almost immediately after the publication of the appeal, telephone calls asked for collection of suits, baby dresses, underclothing, even books, pictures, etc. and our messengers went all over Shanghai to fetch all these warm hearted donations.

Till yesterday afternoon, about 400 pieces of clothing of all kinds arrived at this office, and cash donations as well were sent to us. This morning we have received further calls, and I sincerely hope that they have not been the last ones. All clothes were distributed to needy refugees on the very day when the parcels and baskets reached our office, and there is still a big number of those who are on the waiting list.

I trust that all Shanghailanders, evacuees or not, know that the least bit of clothes, a pair of trousers, a jacket, a child's coat or anything in the way of dresses etc. will be appreciated by those unfortunate men, women and children who, in some cases, arrived here without any baggage, but who were glad to find hospitality in this city which has, till now, never let them down and will not do so when they appeal, through me, for assistance and help.

If you have even the smallest donation, please do not hesitate to telephone 16637 or write to the International Committee for the Organization of European Immigrants in China, Sassoon House.

Bus Fares:
The Early Morning Racket

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—On the principle of the early bird catching the worm, the bus ticket non-selling racket reaches dizzy heights in the morning hours before Inspectors have aroused from their slumbers. On No. 9 Route, Jockey 324 was leading all his rivals this morning. It may be a good idea for the C.G.O.C. to institute a dawn patrol and save us increased fares later on.

Seventy Years Ago

FROM THE "NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS" OF NOVEMBER 7, 1870

The French barque Nouvelle Penelope, which left Macao, bound to Peru, with about 300 Chinese emigrants on board, was taken possession of by the coolies while at sea. As we learn the facts of the case, the rising took place early in the morning, and when part of the watch on deck aloft were engaged in making sail. The Captain and mate were killed and all but eight of the crew. The females on board were thrown overboard, and the ship run into the harbour of Tinpack, where she now is, or was at last accounts. This place is some 150 miles to the westward of Macao. Six of the crew are still on board, two made their escape and fled to Macao with the news.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

ROOSEVELT WINS

By returning President Roosevelt for a third term of office the people of the United States by a large majority have made what is in all probability the most epoch-making decision in the whole of their history. The breaking of the tradition against a third term,—for after all it was only a tradition,—clearly shows that the people of the United States have risen with greatness to the occasion, and have decided that the times are such that it is advisable to retain the services of a man who has so distinguished himself in serving his country. While it is true that had Mr. Wendell Willkie been elected the policy of the Republican administration, which he would have led, with regard to the aggressor Powers would have been no different from that already adopted by his successful opponent, his defeat is significant as being in effect a general rebuff to Hitler and Mussolini on the part of a great democracy. The dictators are now brought to a realization that the majority of American voters are behind President Roosevelt in his determination to give every possible assistance, short of war, to the British Empire, and that at no time during the past twelve months has he in any way represented a lone voice crying in the wilderness.

But the result of the poll is even more striking than that. Those who voted for Mr. Willkie did in fact endorse a similar foreign policy, and, though there must undoubtedly be isolationist exceptions, the fact is that there is practically unanimity of opinion in the United States regarding their attitude towards the European struggle and the situation in the Far East. The great issue in the election was not with regard to foreign policy, for the two parties were agreed, but involved purely domestic matters, and whatever difference of opinion there was in the United States with regard to them, opponents of President Roosevelt were not numerically powerful enough to unseat him. There cannot be the slightest doubt that in the very bitter pre-election campaign Mr. Willkie made gigantic efforts to persuade the country to give him the verdict. Making hundreds of speeches before millions of listeners, travelling almost the whole length and breadth of the country, and supported by a widespread and enthusiastic organization of supporters, Mr. Willkie was undoubtedly assisted by the latent prejudice against any president serving a third term. Mr. Roosevelt in that respect suffered a disadvantage, which was increased by the fact that preoccupation with foreign affairs kept him close at home and prevented him from stumping the country as did his opponent. That was offset to some extent by the fact that while all that Mr. Willkie could offer the electorate were promises, President Roosevelt was taking action which commanded and obtained the support of the masses of the people. His decisions with regard to the European war now appear to have been based upon a very shrewd idea of what would be the reaction of the majority of Americans with regard to them, and in this connection Mr. Roosevelt has shown a degree of political insight which more than ever justifies his reelection.

It is not difficult to estimate the effect this result will have upon the British. They find a man, whose sympathy with them in their immense struggle has all along been so manifest, thoroughly endorsed by the masses of the people of the United States. They realize that he is in a stronger position now than he has been at any time during the past twelve months, and they can expect full continuance of the United States's foreign policy along the lines which President Roosevelt has laid down. Whatever comfort the enemy might have found in a defeat of Mr. Roosevelt has been denied them. Efforts to influence the election have been brought to naught and they have suffered a psychological reverse which is bound to have repercussions. Nothing could possibly have been more encouraging for the British people than this signal success of President Roosevelt, for it shows that the heart of the American people is with them in this great fight for the principles of democracy in a sympathy which has already been translated into acts.

MR. CHURCHILL'S REVIEW

Mr. Winston Churchill's review of the war situation is remarkable for the level unimpassioned manner in which he has dealt with the facts of the situation, and because of that is most encouraging. It is particularly important to note that he has not sought to mislead Parliament on the subject of the U-boat menace, admitting serious losses since the beginning of the war, but pointing out that Britain has nearly as much tonnage as she had at the commencement of hostilities, and stating that he had no doubt that British shipping would be able to carry all vital supplies of food and munitions which the nation would require. He anticipates that still heavier submarine attacks will have to be faced, but said that the Government were making immense preparations to deal with them. That is about the only item on the debit side of the balance sheet which he so frankly presented to the House of Commons. Set off against it are the failure of Hitler to carry out his threatened invasion of Britain, itself a notable victory, the growing strength of the air force, the substantial reinforcement of the army in Egypt, the ability quickly to send aid to Greece, and the ever increasing development of Empire resources for the purpose of bringing this war to a successful conclusion.

Mr. Churchill has added point to the confidence which various ministers have expressed as to the future in recent speeches, and his own statement is rich in that quiet certainty that the Empire is following the right lines which must inevitably lead to victory. When that is to come remains to be seen, but the Prime Minister made no bones about informing his listeners and the Empire at large that the extension of the war to 1943, and even 1944 must always be considered as possible. Naturally, a great deal depends upon the enemies' ability to withstand the punishment which is being meted out to them now and which will become intensified as the Empire's strength reaches its peak. That the heavy blows which have been directed against Germany are already having a certain effect stories brought out of Germany by neutrals clearly demonstrate. The Germans dread having to pass through another winter, even though it may not be so bad as the last. What their views are upon the possibility of having to struggle on for another three years may well be comprehended, for the masses of the Germans showed no great enthusiasm about entering the war, and show much less now.

There cannot be the slightest doubt that the speed with which Britain went to the aid of the Greeks has played an important part already in the Italo-Greek hostilities. Greek moral was high on the outset of hostilities, and rose higher when it became known that Britain was already in on their side. There is every reason to believe that their claims of successes are correct, a view which is borne out by a significant admission made by the "Piccolo," which, according to the German news agency, has stated that operations in Greece are assuming the character of guerilla warfare with unexpected difficulties and surprises, a kind of warfare which is taxing the initiative of every Italian officer and soldier. As Mr. Churchill has pointed out the establishment of naval, and air bases in Crete, and elsewhere brings the British air force and navy within easier striking distance of military objectives in southern Italy, and Britain is now in the position,—which she was not in before Italy breached Greek neutrality,—of being able to carry the war well home to the Italians, who up to the present have suffered little, and done less. Mr. Churchill promises that the war against them will continue on an ever-growing scale, and while there must be some regret that a former ally has to come under the hammer blows which Britain is preparing to deliver, it has to be pointed out that Mussolini has asked, by his conduct, for what his nation is now about to receive. It is patent that the facts all round justify Mr. Churchill in making the quietly optimistic speech he has made, and while there must be no complacency,—it is hoped that by now the British have been thoroughly shaken out of that unfortunate frame of mind,—there is every reason to believe that the Empire is definitely on the road to victory though much time may have to pass before it is gained.

Changing Their Minds

One effect of the indiscriminate bombing of British cities by the Nazis, an effect which Hitler could not have taken into his calculations, has been that a number of leading pacifists have publicly announced that they have changed their minds. Among them are Professor C. E. M. Joad, Bertrand Russell, A. A. Milne, and Dr. Maude Royden. The actions of the Nazis have apparently opened the eyes of Professor Joad to the fundamental issues of the war—the struggle between barbarism and civilization. Of the Nazi régime he says: "It is the eclipse of the mind, the death of the spirit and the dark night of the soul, the greatest single set-back for humanity that history records." Bertrand Russell, for so long the opponent of the use of force, has also been made a convert to the war. He says: "Ever since the war began I have felt that I could not go on being a Pacifist, but I have hesitated to say so because of the responsibility involved. If I were young enough to fight myself I should do so, but it is more difficult to urge others." A. A. Milne, the author, who wrote a book some years ago called "Peace With Honour" and is also the author of the delightful series of children's books which is known the world over, has declared: "My conscience isn't so important as the salvation of the world, and, as a start, the abolition of Hitlerism.....To say, when one's country is at war, 'I refuse to take part in this war' is as meaningless as to say, when one's house is on fire 'I refuse to take part in this fire.'" Dr. Royden published her views in the "Daily Herald." There she said:

> "I have been a Pacifist since 1914, and I took up the Quaker position. I thought war was the worst thing in the world, and I have held that view all these years. But I have come to the conclusion that there is something worse than war. That is Nazism. In the ultimate sense, of course, I am still a pacifist, because I believe that we ought to be able, by cutting at the roots of war, to do away with it altogether. But in the present situation it is too late for that. Today there is literally only one way left open to us to defeat Nazism, and we have got to take it. It is no longer a question of material force versus spiritual power. We have reached a position where we have got to use force or nothing."

These four famous persons have been convinced by the atrocities of Hitler and his minions that the only way to save all that they believe and honour is to fight. Their views carry weight, since all are known to be persons whose opinions are well founded and not easily changed. All of them have from time to time made public announcements in favour of solution of international difficulties by other means than war. What has brought about the change? The deliberate slaughter of non-combatants, women and children, and the pleasure over such exploits which the Nazis have been at no pains to hide—the open encouragement of all that is worst in human nature.

ALONG THE HIGHWAYS

Nov. 5.—We are enjoying ourselves amongst the chrysanthemums these days: there are an enormous number of varieties grown locally; we are finding new ones practically every day. During the summer garden owners did not have much choice in the case of flowering subjects, we saw the same varieties in many places, but now the chrysanthemum season is in full swing, it is different. Each garden appears to have its own special favourites and some are really beautiful. Today, we saw the most showy variety that we have seen so far this season. The plant was trained in the usual "table top" way, but it was quite dwarf: only a little over two feet in height: this appealed to us in the first place and, secondly, it was in a position where it showed to the best advantage. It was on the terrace of a large club house on Great Western Road. It was not alone by any means: there were dozens of other plants and it gave us much pleasure to see what a keen interest is being taken in the cultivation of things beautiful, by the people at the club; they were always keen gardeners, but this year they appear to have surpassed previous attempts. To return to the special plant: the gardener told us that it was called "Nee ching dah," there were about thirty-seven perfect blooms to be seen and they were a charming shade of bronzy-yellow: each flower gave us the impression that it had just returned from a beauty parlour where it had undergone a "Marcel-wave" treatment, the petals were nicely curled. "Pink needles" were also seen on the same terrace, as also were "pink claws," and an excellent "lilac lotus": this plant was about two feet high, the "table top" being four feet across and about forty flowers were open when we saw the plant. On the east of the clubhouse, there were numerous beds of dwarf bedding chrysanthemums in full bloom: the effect of a wide border of large yellow "snowballs" surrounding a fountain in a garden of formal design, was particularly pleasing. There were beds of yellow or white chrysanthemums everywhere we looked. The gardener took us along a well-kept rose pergola to his pièce de résistance corner where he proudly showed us some more "table tops" carefully concealed beneath a reed-blind shelter. They were beauties! Three of the plants had over sixty flowers open. A variety bearing flowers of a pleasing shade of light lilac was especially attractive while the "needle" varieties were represented by some fine specimens. The garden has also been taken right inside the club premises for we saw some white "cascades" arranged in places where one would not expect to find them.—W.F.K.

U.S. MOTOR CAR DRIVER

Ab Jenkins Says Safety First

On advice of Ab Jenkins, greatest individual holder of automobile driving records, the United States' first need in highway safety is education for new drivers. Grade and high schools are the medium, he asserts, for teaching skills of car handling and development of educated judgment among budding drivers.

Fast driving, even at extreme speeds, is safe when road and traffic are favourable and the driver competent, he says. Elected Mayor of Salt Lake City last November the husky, six-foot Jenkins last summer finished an endurance record speed run of 3,858 miles in 24 hours on Utah's Bonneville Salt Flats, reports the "New York Times." The average speed was 161 miles an hour, with the Mayor driving fourteen hours. For years Ab Jenkins has been one of the outstanding figures in the automobile world, known for his great endurance driving tests. He counts the records he has won by the hundreds and scores of his marks stand today. Yet insurance companies have had him on their lists for 34 years without ever having an accident claim on his automobiles.

Since 1906 Mayor Jenkins has driven more than 2,000,000 miles without an accident, although he hastily adds, "I did have to leave the road a few times."

He has little faith in so-called speed limits. A car's speed should be governed by road conditions, weather, lighting, nearness of other cars, intersections and, above all, the ability of the driver. On some highways with 60-mile speed limits the nation's fastest driver dares drive only 30 miles per hour.

Children Should Be Taught to Drive

Although Jenkins sees little hope of making good drivers of this generation, he believes the real solution to the nation's traffic problem lies in education.

"The kids should be taught to drive correctly while they're in school," he said. "If they learn from their fathers or their older brothers they pick up all the bad habits of their teacher, and so bad driving goes right on.

"Each school should have some type of automobile, perhaps geared down to a maximum speed of two miles per hour. The children should learn under experts to start, stop and steer the machine, and they should be taught to do it correctly from the start."

The average motorist could glean some tips for driving comfort by watching Ab Jenkins at the wheel of his private automobile, which he drives for relaxation. He keeps alert at all times but never allows himself to become nervous or tense. His left elbow is kept at his side, not parked stiffly on the window ledge.

When Jenkins pushed his Mormon Meteor III onto the natural salt-racing course he was out to break his own records for sustained driving established in 1939. He held every record from one to 48 hours. Taking the wheel for the first furious six hours, he shattered all existing marks for the period and turned one lap at 189 miles per hour, the fastest speed ever recorded on a curved track and a speed formerly believed impossible on a curve. Aided by Relief Driver Cliff Bergere, a veteran of the Indianapolis speedway, Jenkins continued his speed conquest, establishing 84 new records.

He has ambitions, but they are not political. He's thinking not about another term of office, but of the possibilities of travelling 400 m.p.h. over the measured mile, and returning to the United States the last major record held by a foreigner. He wants to travel 200 miles in an hour, and set a 24-hour record of more than 4,000 miles, with his 20-year-old son, Marvin, as his relief driver.

From Here and There

A SHARP nose indicates curiosity—and a flat one too much curiosity.

A homely girl gets on a man's nerves, but a pretty one gets on his lap.

"Is that your new girl?"
"No, just the old one painted over."

No wife minds her husband being a dreamer so long as he isn't a snorer.

"Will you have a Peach Sundae?"
"No, but I've got a date with a lulu Tuesday."

The street cleaner has a hard job. The more he labours the more his work piles up.

"Charming furniture you have. What period is it?"
"My first marriage."

A certain couple have been dispossessed so often that the wife buys curtains just to match the pavement.

Pertinent Points for Ladies

Do your skirts bulge in the rear?
Are they glossy from sitting down?
Do you broadcast how much you spend on clothes?
Have you thin dresses which people can see through?
Have your dresses that "loving hands" home-sewed look?
Are your clothes so wrinkled they're like an unmade bed?
Do your dresses have uneven hemlines which dip and sag like scallops?
Do you wear so much jewellery you remind people of a Christmas tree?
Do you lean toward dark colours because "they don't show the dirt?"
Do you have gaping openings in your dresses which put in a word for your slip?
Do you try to look like a little girl when you're old enough to have a big one?
Do you wear large artificial flowers which people will stare at before your face?
Do you wear light-coloured dresses and dark stockings which argue with each other?
Are you always pulling down your dress as if it were about to spring to your waist?
Do you wear a spotted housecoat for breakfast which reminds you of yesterday's eggs?
Do you wear too-bright clothes which knock out your escort's eyes, and blind him to your other charms?
Do you go in for huge designs on your dresses which look like merchantman's camouflage in a war convoy?
Do your light cuffs and collars have a darkish border—suggesting laundering need or formal mourning?
Have you the "doo-dad" jewellery disease—with gadgets pinned, fastened and stuck to you in all possible places?

If you're the tall, thin type, do you wear:

High-heeled shoes?
High-peaked hats?
Knee length skirts?
Long vertical stripes?

If you're the short and stoutish type, do you wear:

A wide belt which cuts you in half at the equator?
Wide, horizontal stripes?
Tight dress?
Wide picture hats?

Motor Highway to Tachienlu

Chevrolet Viewed With Awe by Tribal Nomads And Tibetan Villagers

By Tassie

Tachienlu, Oct. 18.

Yesterday and today this border city has enjoyed a most exciting time, when a beautiful Chevrolet did everything but shake hands with the grunniens. For nearly two weeks some hundreds of people were working night and day widening and clearing the approach to Tachienlu. A telephone message came through announcing the arrival of the Chevrolet at Jazamka, two days from this city, and this was all that was necessary to throw the town into wild excitement. Tribal, Tibetan and Chinese flocked to the east gate to watch this wonder arrive. And all day the Tibetans have been walking round this mystery car wondering how it got here on four wheels.

The Cheng-Kang highway, apart from two or three places, is now an accomplished fact. This side of Jashka there is a cliff that still gives some difficulty and on both sides of the Erlang pass there are places where the car travels with some difficulty, but with some care a small car can get through. When the cliff part of the highway has been widened it will be possible for trucks to get through and then the motor road will be officially opened to traffic.

Today the Chevrolet entered the city and caused considerable excitement as it moved down some of the main streets. Inhabitants, specially the woolly nomads, watched it pass and then joined the wild mob that followed as it moved along. One could only guess by looking at the woolly nomad what his mental reaction was to this strangely moving vehicle. Time is nothing to the lama and the nomad and both would stand for hours, first looking (gazing) inside the car, then on their knees examining all that was to be seen underneath. A couple of lamas all the way from Lhasa stood with their hands behind their backs, gazing, gazing at what is known in the Tibetan language as a ca-nam-ko-lo, that is, earth-oil-wheel.

The grunniens, even when it runs, will only travel some 20 miles per day, when it walks not even that. Yet here was something, and not a shing-da-ko-lo (wooden-horse-wheel) that could travel at 50 m.p. h.

Powers of Darkness

The nomad has undoubtedly absorbed from Lamaism the idea that anything which moves faster than the woolly yak must be under the control of the powers of darkness; in his simple mind he has unconsciously associated swiftness with devils and demons: he can get away from a wild yak, but he has great difficulty in escaping the wicked designs of some evil and unclean spirit. When the first aeroplane flew over Minya the woolly nomad had very little difficulty in tracing its origin, design and mission. It belonged to the sinister forces that inhabit the air and bring death and destruction on harmless men. The lamas and lamaseries in Tachienlu have not yet taken very kindly to electricity, still believing that somehow it is connected with the powers of darkness. Lamaism postulates nothing but nothing and everything outside nothing is not only dark but dangerous.

The construction of the present Chang-Kang highway has been nothing short of fabulous. Between Tachienlu and Wanikow the road leads through a rocky defile for 20 miles. Cairnerbon, the young Canadian engineer, connected with the Central Government said that some 250,000 tons of stone would need to be removed and apparently it has been done. Thousands of stone masons have been blasting away for over a year and thousands of earth-carriers have been following the masons till at last a somewhat modern highway has come into existence.

The new highway lacks hostels along the route and these will no doubt come in time. Until these are built the old eight-day road is still being used by coolies and chair travellers. The arrival of the Chevrolet has already had the effect of lowering somewhat the price of a two-man carrying rig known as a hua-gang. The price charged by the men for the eight days was $180.90 each; this has now fallen to $140 for the two men, and no doubt will fall lower still. When the bus company starts operations the charge will be $60 between here and Yachow, with an allowance of 30 lb. of luggage, and the journey will occupy, it is reported, two days. Landslides among the Tibetan mountains are frequent and already rains have washed out parts of the road.

Filling Station Men Charged with Fraud

Car owners were warned yesterday in the First Special District Court against neglecting to check their meters when refuelling when three attendants of the gasoline filling station at 920 Bubbling Well Road were sentenced to three months' imprisonment each for cheating customers while refuelling. The trick was recently discovered by a foreign lady who ordered five gallons of gasoline, whereas she actually obtained four gallons as registered by her car meter. The accused men had discovered a method whereby the gasoline pump could register more gasoline than the actual amount passing through the tube leading to a customer's car. The management was informed of the trick and investigations by them revealed that the attendants were dishonest.

WEDDING

Miller—Kamkoff

The wedding of Miss Alla Kamkoff and Mr. Perry Miller was solemnized on Tuesday at the residence of the Rev. Eugene Davis at 23 Zikawei Road, in the compound of the Grace High School. The Rev. Mr. Davis conducted the service.

Subsequent to a private reception held immediately after the ceremony, at which 50 friends of the bride and groom were present, the wedding dinner was held in the premises of the Russian Club on Avenue Foch, at which 40 friends and relatives attended. A feature of the occasion was the presence of the bride's 87-year-old grandmother, who proposed the toast to the bride and groom.

Owing to complications of the evacuation scheme, the honeymoon abroad has had to be postponed.

Blitzpolitik's World Map

Axis-Japanese Pact Boldly Parcels Out Globe; Many Questions Remain Unanswered

WIRELESS TO THE NEW YORK TIMES

Berlin, Oct. 5.

THE redrafting of the world map by "the dynamic have-nots" undertaken in the midst of a war against "the static, saturated and senile world plutocracies" — such is the acknowledged aim of the tripartite pact of the Reich, Italy and Japan, signed in Berlin, reports the "New York Times.". The technique of the pact's conclusion was itself a striking example of the new totalitarian Blitzpolitik—worthy diplomatic corollary of the military Blitzkrieg —which once before startled the world by the conclusion of the Hitler-Stalin pact of August, 1939.

Free from the traditions and inhibitions of old-style diplomacy, the pact's signatories boldly drew pencil lines over both hemispheres, dividing the world into four major Grossraeume,—namely, Western Europe with Africa, the Soviet Union, Great East Asia and the Americas. Two of these "large spaces"—the European-African space dominated by the Axis powers and the Asiatic dominated by Japan—are forthwith to form one bloc of 250,000,000 united by political and military alliance. This bloc of two Grossraeume faces the two remaining continental "spaces," the Soviet Union and the Americas, disunited geographically and politically.

The boldness of the conceptions of the new pact for world division causes the German press to recall the only precedent of similar historic magnitude, when in 1494 Pope Alexander VI drew over the globe a line demitarating the spheres of the Spanish and Portuguese colonial empires.

When asked what is the common denominator of the three outwardly so different partners in the new pact, Germans point to their "youth," high birth rates and density of population rather than the questionable affinity between Nazism and Fascism on the one hand and Japanese Shintoism on the other. The term "youth," constantly used as a common characteristic of Germans, Italians and Japanese in public documents and addresses of leading statesmen, sounds strange considering that at least two of these peoples are looking back on a history of thousands of years. The answer to such doubts is that the term youth must be interpreted spiritually as meaning youthful aggressiveness of old peoples who have awakened to a new life.

The world's future map as redrafted in Berlin still leaves some spots as undistributed no-man's land among the four great politico-economic blocs, but its most significant and most ominous feature is the disappearance of wide spaces and small dots spread over both hemispheres and painted in the colours of the British Empire. It is a timely reminder that realization of the new world plan is contingent on the destruction of "an unorganic agglomerate of lands and territories, based on centuries of conquests and depredations, completely unjustified geographically and economically," as the Nazi and Fascist press usually characterizes the far-flung British Empire.

Room for Speculation

While the world's division in four great blocs is clearly stated or implied in the pact and the accompanying speeches of the Axis and Japanese statesmen, a more precise delimitation of their respective interest spheres—or, using the new term instead of the old diplomatic parlance, "power spheres"—is lacking in the published documents and therefore left to the imagination and speculation of neutral observers.

This lack of definition, whether intentional or not, is particularly noticeable regarding Japan's future "power sphere." No doubt is left that continental Europe west of the Soviet Union and the greater part of Africa is to form the "power sphere" of the Axis powers, the Reich and Italy.

Regarding the delimitation between the Nazi Reich and the Italian empire there can be little doubt that Scandinavia, the Low Countries and France are expected to follow Berlin's orbit, while the Mediterranean, with the possible inclusion of Spain, is considered the Italian domain. The position of the Balkan countries is more ambiguous inasmuch as theoretically both Germany and Italy claim political and economic influence in this part of Europe. It will be safe to say that the actual influence of each country in southeastern Europe will be determined by the power balance between them and that in present circumstances Berlin will have at last the say in all matters pertaining to the Balkans, with the possible exception of Greece, as a predominantly Mediterranean state.

No "Africa for the Africans"

The ideological slogan "Asia for the Asiatics," justifying the plans for Japan's domination of East Asia, finds no parallel in a similar formula of "Africa for the Africans." Moreover, explicitly, or implicitly, Africa is considered a mere appendage of an Axis-dominated Europe. The airtight secretiveness of totalitarian diplomacy has prevented any leakage of reliable information regarding the Berlin-Rome plans for Africa's division recently discussed by Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop and Premier Mussolini in Rome, but it is generally assumed in neutral Berlin circles that the Italian partner will have first choice and the main influence in Northern Africa, including Egypt, while the Reich's aspirations are for a colonial empire in Central Africa stretching from the Atlantic to the Indian Ocean and embracing a part of the former German colonies, the Belgian Congo and former British territories.

The Soviet Union's "Lebensraum," which the signatories of the Berlin pact have undertaken to respect in Article V, seems more difficult to define. Finland in the north and Outer Mongolia, with the possible addition of Chinese Turkestan, probably belong indisputably to Russia's "power sphere."

The Soviet Union's interest in the Balkans and possibly the Straits, the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles, is the most delicate point in a situation characterized politically and militarily by the fact that Moscow must now feel as a reality on its Western and Eastern borders the pincers of the German-Japanese military alliance.

The pact, in defending Japan's "power sphere," uses the ambiguous term "Great East Asiatic space." Its ambiguity is further enhanced by the Japanese statesmen and press using the still more indefinite term "Great Asiatic space." Manchoukuo, the greater part of China, whether at present conquered by the Japanese or not, Indo-China and Thailand (Siam), as the only important independent state of southeastern Asia, probably belong to the Japanese sphere as seen by the Axis partners.

Japanese economic interests in the Netherlands Indies probably also are recognized by Berlin and Rome, but whether the Reich intends in case of a victorious termination of the war to present to Japan its political claims on the Indies, derived from occupation of the motherland, appears now premature speculation.

Japanese Designs on Philippines

A similar uncertainty prevails regarding the Philippines, but it will be a safe guess that Axis encouragement for eventual Japanese plans in the Philippine Islands will depend on the degree of German-American tension in the war.

The most important implication of the Berlin pact in regard to the Far East is that it virtually gives Japan carte blanche in dealing with European and American interests in that part of the globe, and the Axis powers will have equally little or no means of checking or moderating Japanese Far Eastern policy in regard to European, including German and Italian interests, as Britain or France in the present state of the world.

That the pact's spearhead is directed against the United States is undenied in Berlin despite the fact that America is not mentioned in the pact's text. Nevertheless, officially Germans acknowledge theoretically the validity of the Monroe Doctrine and merely assert it is violated in practice by the United States' "intervention" in European affairs in England's support.

Likewise the United States' right to the economic organization of the western hemisphere is theoretically not questioned and often is even regarded as copying the Reich's own Grossraum conceptions, but practically the German press constantly points out that South America economically is tied up with Europe, since the United States is unable to absorb export surpluses. Also warnings were sounded recently in the German press lest the United States should try to gain control of Britain's "world monopolies" of war materials, whose destruction often has been described as the principal war aim of the totalitarian States.

"Kokumin" Wants Japan To End China War

Japan's Bid for Soviet Friendship Questioned.

Tokyo, Nov. 6.

Pointing out that Japan should concentrate her efforts upon the termination of the China conflict, the "Kokumin Shimbun," a metropolitan daily with strong nationalistic tendencies, today editorially questioned the advisability of Japan's participation in the bidding for Soviet support now going on in Moscow with the totalitarian Powers and the democracies as contestants.

"In discussing basic Soviet-Japanese relations it is dangerous to overlook Japanese-American relations and the resultant Pacific question. However, at present, wouldn't our immediate objective attained by improving Soviet-Japanese relations based upon an understanding covering recognition of Japan's leading position in the Far East and the cessation of Soviet's assistance to Chungking? We don't believe that Japan should pay an unnecessary price by setting high any wide aims."

The daily pointed out that Chungking was still obtaining supplies from Soviet Russia through the northwestern route which at present was "the only route operating efficiently."

The "Kokumin" cited the strenuous efforts being made by the Chungking regime to block Soviet-Japanese rapprochment as well as the "silence being maintained by Chinese Communists, who hitherto had been bitterest toward the Japanese," as "best reflecting" the possibility of Soviet-Japanese understanding.

The daily concluded that a limited Soviet-Japanese accord reducing Soviet assistance to Chungking would provide the necessary short cut for an early termination of the China conflict.—Domei.

Foundations Laid

Tokyo, Nov. 6.

Foundations for Japanese Soviet amity have already been established, but the stage of "real work for the readjustment of relations is still pending," Mr. Shigenori Togo, former Japanese Ambassador to Moscow, told the press upon his return here last night. German soviet relations were becoming more cordial, Mr. Togo added.—Domei.

Hongkong Evacuation Not Compulsory

Women, Children Remaining Urged to Leave, However

Hongkong, Nov. 6

Compulsory evacuation of women and children still in Hongkong will not be enforced but they are urged to leave, it was officially announced today. The announcement was made under instructions from London, officials said.

Women and children previously ordered to leave this week for Australia, however, will have passages booked if they so desire, the announcement said. Although not forcing them to go the announcement urged women and children to leave.

In case of an emergency, the announcement said, facilities will not be guaranteed. The situation in the Far East at present does not warrant the return of women and children already evacuated, officials said.

More than one hundred women who had been evacuated to Australia, last week petitioned Hongkong authorities to allow them to return to their husbands in Hongkong.—United Press.

Japanese Heads Confer On China Problems

Recent Nanking Parleys Discussed in Tokyo

Tokyo, Nov. 6.

A two-hour conference for the discussion of various problems relating to the recent negotiations at Nanking for the readjustment of Sino-Japanese relations and the China Incident, was held at the Premier's official residence this morning with the Premier, Prince Fumimaro Konoye and four other high officials in attendance, Mr. Kenji Tomita, Chief Cabinet Secretary, announced at noon.

In addition to the Premier, those who attended the conference, which was believed to have an important bearing upon the future course of the Sino-Japanese relations, were Major-General Akira Muto, Director of the Military Affairs Bureau of the War Office, Rear-Admiral Arata Oka, Director of the Naval Affairs Bureau of the Navy Ministry, Major-General Teiichi Suzuki, Director of the Political Affairs Bureau of the Asia Development Board, and Mr. Kenji Tomita, Chief Cabinet Secretary.—Domei.

Suma Calls for Change In U.S. Policy

"Unfeasible" Says Gaimusho Spokesman to Press

Tokyo, Nov. 6.

Characterizing America's Far Eastern policy as "unfeasible," Mr. Yakichiro Suma, Gaimusho spokesman, declared here yesterday that the lines of conduct taken by the United States in foreign affairs would have to be reconsidered regardless of the outcome of the presidential elections.

Asserting that America's Far Eastern policy was "too theoretical," Mr. Suma stated that he believed its reorientation was "absolutely necessary."

These statements by the Foreign Office Spokesman were made when questioned by American correspondents, who asked at the regular press conference this morning, if he expected America's Foreign Policy to change following the elections.

Mr. Suma denied that Mr. Joseph C. Grew, U.S. Envoy to Japan, had visited Mr. Yosuke Matsuoka recently. However, he admitted that Mr. Edward Crocker, Acting Counsellor of the American Embassy, had called on Mr. Taro Terasaki, Director of the American Affairs Bureau, on November 5, regarding a "very small routine matter."—Domei.

Hanoi Talks Continue

Hanoi, Nov. 6.

Negotiations on various economic problems pending between the two countries were held at the Financial Supervision Bureau here yesterday afternoon between Mr. Shinichi Shibusawa, Secretary-General of the Japanese delegation, and representatives of the French Indo-China Government. The conversations lasted for 90 minutes.—Domei.

ss. Washington Arrives In Honolulu

En Route to Evacuate U.S. Citizens from Far East

Honolulu, Nov. 6.

The ss. Washington, en route to evacuate Americans from the Far East, arrived here yesterday with a total passenger and crew list of 2,601 persons.

Of the civilians 935 were workers who were disembarked here. Approximately 400 National Guardsmen from California's 251st coast artillery regiment also disembarked.

One hundred fifty men of the regular Army also were in the ship and will continue to Manila.

The Washington will sail on Thursday after loading a large cargo of military and naval supplies.—United Press.

Manila, Nov. 6.

Consisting mostly of families of the American naval personnel, 256 United States residents are sailing from here tomorrow in the Matson Liner, Monterey, the first American evacuation ship sent to the Far East.

With the departure of an additional 600 wives and children aboard the ss. Washington on November 25, virtually all dependents of American Naval personnel will have left the Philippines —Domei.

U.S. Navy Watching French Islands

Offer of Martinique Naval Base to U.S. Seen

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Nov. 6.

American naval patrols are watching French islands closely, making daily visits without violating limits of territorial waters, it was reliably reported here yesterday.

Leading naval authorities told the United Press that "hardly anything happens anywhere in the Antilles waters of which we are unaware."—United Press.

Naval Base in Martinique?

Washington, Nov. 6.

Marshal Petain is believed to have assured the United States Government that France does not intend to give up to the Reich any part contro of her Colonies.

General Benavita, new French military attaché in Washington, is expected to arrive here with instructions concerning Martinique.

The United States is unlikely to move until General Benavita has arrived. Certain diplomatic quarters envisage an offer to the United States of an air and naval base at Martinique.—Reuter.

FROM DAY TO DAY

THERE will be a celebration of Holy Communion in the Bubbling Well Chapel this morning at 10.30 a.m.

COMMANDER C. S. Sheppard, R.N., as from October 25, has assumed the duties of British Naval Liaison Officer at the British Embassy, in succession to Captain P.H.G. James, R. N.

REV. J. M. Hardie, B.Sc., will broadcast a talk on "Some aspects of Sociology" from XGRS, "The Voice of Democracy" in Shanghai, wave length 208m, 1440kc., tonight at 9 p.m.

CEREMONIES for the re-opening of the Hwainan Railway between Yukiakow and Tienkiaan in Anhwei province, were held at Yukiakow on Tuesday according to the "Shanghai Mainichi."

SHANGHAI had eight hours less sunshine last month than during the average October. The possible duration of sunshine for the month was 353 hours, out of which we received 166 hours only, or 47 per cent.

THE municipal authorities at Kweilin, Kwangsi, have issued an order that only unpolished rice may be sold, reports the "Sin Wan Pao." Hereafter rice merchants and factories are not permitted to produce second grade machine-rolled rice, and shall be liable to punishment for failure to comply with the order.

WOUNDED soldiers in the 4th hospital of the Ministry of War on Tuesday voluntarily raised a contribution of C$1,500 for a wounded-soldiers' aviation fund for the Chinese Government, says a Chungking report to "Sin Wan Pao." The action received the high commendation of General Chiang Kai-shek.

SIXTY-five items of miscellaneous taxes have been abolished by the Kwangtung Provincial Government, Shaokwan reports to the "Sin Wan Pao." Among them are the export tax on tung oil and steel yard (measure). The abolition of these miscellaneous taxes have involved losses of revenue amounting to C$59,230 for the four months ended September 30, 1940.

A JOINT meeting of the Royal Asiatic Society (N.C.B.) and the International Institute of China will be held in the R.A.S. Auditorium, 20 Museum Road, on November 14, at 5.30 p.m., when a lecture will be given by Mr. Arthur de Carle Sowerby entitled "The Insectivores of China," illustrated with lantern slides and specimens. The meeting is open to the public.

RUMOURS that in view of the present situation in the Far East the American mission-supported Yenching University in Peiping would shortly be closed down, was denied by Dr. Leighton Stuart, the Chancellor, during his recent visit to Hongkong, states the "Chinese American Daily News." The American instructors at the university have decided not to evacuate from China for the time being.

A CHARITY raffle to raise funds for winter clothing for refugees will be held under the auspices of the Chinese Women's Club at its headquarters, 999 Bubbling Well Road, at 2 p.m. on November 11. A number of valuable prizes for the lucky winners, including a beautiful 12-tube console model radio, are on display in the windows of Messrs. Wing On Co., Nanking Road. Tickets may be obtained now from the gift-coupon counter of the Wing On Store or from all members of the Club.

FOLLOWING the practice which is to be observed at home this year, there will be no special service in the Cathedral on Armistice Day, but Sunday will be observed as "Remembrance Sunday." Mattins in the Cathedral will be suitably arranged by the choice of appropriate hymns, lessons and prayers. Members of the United Services' Association have been specially invited to attend and following the custom recently followed on Armistice Day, the flag of the Association will follow the procession of choir and clergy and will be formally received and placed upon the altar. The Dean will preach an appropriate address.

ON November 12, at 4.30 p.m. at the American Women's Club a musical programme has been arranged by Marion Ruynen-Winkler, pianist, and Ferdinand Adler, violinist, who are both outstanding artistes and need no introduction to music lovers in Shanghai. The following programme promises to be one of the musical treats of the year:—

Scarlatti—Pastorale and Capriccio
Marion Ruynen-Winkler
Mozart—Sonata
Marion Ruynen-Winkler and Ferdinand Adler
Chopin—Ballade
Marion Ruynen-Winkler
Saint-Saens—Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso
Svendsen—Romanze
Hubay—Zephir
Ferdinand Adler accompanied by Marion Ruynen-Winkler

MARSHALLING his facts with statistical evidence, Mr. Yu Hsi-chuan, Commissioner of Reconstruction of the Hunan Provincial Government, last week pointed out that Hunan is an economic backbone to China's national resistance, says a Changsha report to the "Cheng Yien Pao." Hunan at present produces 125,000,000 piculs of foodstuffs sufficient to feed 31,000,000 people annually and since rotation crops have been planted there has been a great increase. During pre-war years the province anually exported C$20,000,000 worth of tung oil, $6,000,000 of hemp and jute, and $5,000,000 worth of wolfram ore. This has now increased and their export has been brought under the control of the Chinese Government.

SINCE October 15 the China Tea Corporation, which has a Chinese Government monopoly charter to purchase tea for exports to foreign countries, has resumed the purchase of red and green tea in Chekiang, Anhwei and Kiangsi areas, states a report to the "Sin Wan Pao." As a special inducement to tea merchants, the China Tea Corporation has offered a 15 per cent increase in buying prices as compared with those quoted during last year. The output of tea in Kiangsi province has been considerably increased in the current year as more than 131,000 cases of green and 29,000 cases of red tea has been gathered, says another report to the "Shun Pao." The China Tea Corporation and the Kiangsi Provincial Government are now discussing means to purchase the output.

SHIPPING NEWS

The* ss. Hukuen Maru of the Toa Kaiun Kaisya will sail for Keelung and Takao at about 10 a.m. today. The steamer is berthed at the company's Yangtszepoo Wharf and passengers are asked to embark not later than half an hour before the ship's departure. Ordinary mail for the above ports to leave on the steamer will close at 8 a.m. today.

The Toa Kaiun Kaisya's new addition to the fleet operating between this port and Nagasaki, the ss. Kobe Maru, entered port yesterday afternoon and docked alongside the company's Yangtszepoo Wharf. The steamer will sail on her return voyage to Nagasaki at 8.30 a.m. today, with passengers being requested to go aboard between 7 and 8 a.m.

The fast freighter ss. Sakito Maru, of the N.Y.K., arrived in port at 2.10 p.m. yesterday and tied up at the lower buoys 12 and 13. She will take a large quantity of cargo aboard here sailing for America some time today. The freighter comes here from Hongkong and Keelung, and en route to New York she will call at Dairen, the Japan ports, Los Angeles, the Panama Canal, Philadelphia, and Baltimore.

The Toa Kaiun Kaisya's Shanghai-Nagasaki liner the ss. Shanghai Maru is expected in port this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The vessel, coming directly from Nagasaki with passengers and mail, is to be berthed at the T.K.K. Wayside Wharf. The steamer will sail on her return voyage to Japan at 8.30 a.m. tomorrow, and the passengers are asked to embark not later than half an hour before her departure.

The new N.Y.K. Orient-California express liner, the ss. Yawata Maru, arrived in Shanghai at 8.10 a.m. yesterday and was berthed alongside the Toa Kaiun Kaisya Wayside Wharf. The liner, which is on her second eastbound trip, will stay in port until 11 a.m. today, when she will sail for San Francisco and Los Angeles, via Japan and Honolulu. She came from Hongkong and Manila. The Yawata Maru carries a large shipment of general cargo from Shanghai, as well as many passengers.

The ss. Holen Maru of the D.K.K. Shanghai-Tsingtao-Dairen Line arrived in Shanghai yesterday afternoon and tied up alongside the D.K.K. Whangpoo Wharf in Yangtszepoo Road. The liner, coming here from the northern ports, brought mail and passengers, and is due to leave again on her return trip to Tsingtao and Dairen at 9 a.m. tomorrow. Passengers are requested to embark at least half an hour before the steamer's sailing. Ordinary letter mail for the ship will be closed at 7.15 a.m. tomorrow.

The ss. President Coolidge, trans-Pacific liner of the American President Lines fleet, left Shanghai at 4 a.m. today, sailing for the United States. Tenders for outgoing passengers were running to the liner from the Customs Petty throughout the day, the last tender being at 1 a.m. The Coolidge, which brought many passengers to Shanghai in addition to mail and considerable amount of cargo, came here from Manila and Hongkong, and en route to her destination, Los Angeles, will call at Kobe, Yokohama, Honolulu and San Francisco.

Vessels Arriving To-day

The following particulars in connection with vessels due to arrive today are based upon information available yesterday evening.

From NAGASAKI: Shanghai Maru, with mail, due 3 p.m., Wayside Wharf.

Due at Future Dates

All vessels are listed under their terminal port. The first date is that of the ship's departure from that port, and the second is the date she is due to arrive in Shanghai. Where a ship's name is duplicated it indicates the port of call last visited.

On account of the present international situation there is considerable interference with movements of ships, especially those from Europe. In cases where it is definitely known that the vessel is not running to schedule the Shanghai arrival date is omitted.

Yesterday's Business

The result of the United States Presidential election seemed to be uppermost in everybody's mind, with the public showing very little interest in the market. Fluctuations were of a very minor nature, the turnover was small, but the undertone continues firm. The rubber market was quiet though steady.

Oil Said Found in Jehol Mountains

Chengte (Jehol City), Nov. 4.

The rugged mountains of Jehol, former hunting preserves of China's last imperial dynasty, may yield untold wealth in oil, it was indicated here yesterday as Dr. Gichiro Kobayashi confirmed the presence of the precious liquid in an area near Shangfanchen Station southwest of Chengte.

An official prospecting party will be sent to the area soon by the Manchoukuo Development Company which holds the monopoly on the oil extraction.

Dr. Kobayashi, former engineer attached to the Japanese Ministry of Commerce and Industry, carried out preliminary investigations following the reported finding of oil on the surface of water wells in that area.—Domei.

Bata Experts in U.S. Lose Permits

Ruling by Department of Justice Says Work Easy For American Labour

Washington, By mail

Charging the Bata Shoe Company, one of the world's largest shoe manufacturers, with use of child labour, payment of low wages, and an apprenticeship system "that is utterly foreign to this country," Robert H. Jackson, Attorney General, made public recently a ruling from the immigration and naturalization division of the Department of Justice, refusing extension of visitors' permits of 12 Czech executives and 47 employees, states the "Christian Science Monitor."

The 59 included in the group entered the United States from Czechoslovakia in May, 1939, to help transplant the Bata speed-up method of manufacturing cheap shoes in competition with shoe manufacturers in Lynn, Boston, St. Louis, and elsewhere. The company set up a $2,000,000 factory at Belcamp, Md., and operates a chain of some 50 retail stores in the East and Middle West. The technical ground given in the order issued for deportation is that the company misrepresented the character of the work to be performed by the alien workers and the methods of manufacture at the Belcamp plant, and that there was nothing in the process which required any skills unknown to American workers.

Control of Workers Charged

In explaining the order, Mr. Jackson went verbally far beyond the technical terms of the decision. He recalled that the company had been fined for low-wage payment under the Wage-Hour Act, and that an injunction had been brought against it under the child labor statutes. He charged that the chief distinguishing feature of the Bata system was its apprenticeship, dormitory and rigid control of the personal lives of workers, which virtually, he asserted made young workers the wards of the company, under agreement with their parents, entered into when the youths themselves were legally too young to make such an agreement themselves.

Asked what would become of the $2,000,000 Bata investment, Mr. Jackson said that there was nothing to prevent the factory from continuing if it employed "American methods."

A still further and graver charge is being made in Washington against the company, though this was not mentioned either in the official order or in Mr. Jackson's verbal comment.

'Persona Grata' With Reich

It is learned from unimpeachable sources that Government investigators, after careful inquiry, have assembled data indicating a possible connection between Bata interests and the Nazi economic system. Czechoslovakia, of course, is now part of the German domain. The Bata company has a score or more of factories around the world.

None of the (Government) files contain any evidence to establish that the Bata Shoe Company, or its affiliates in the United States are, at the present time, engaged in subversive activities here, according to one confidential report made by Government investigators, but there is considerable evidence indicating that Jan A. Bata and officials of the Bata organization in the United States are 'persona grata' with the present German government.

Jan A. Bata is president of the Bata Shoe Company. The parent company is Bata A. S. of Zlin, Czechoslovakia, now a protectorate of Germany.

Further, there is every reason to believe that the Bata organization in this country is a part of the Nazi economic plan for trade expansion and that the Bata company and its affiliates serve as a source of foreign exchange for Germany, the report said.

Government investigators stated that Jan Bata fled his home on March 15, 1939, the day the Nazi army began occupation.

However, he later returned to Zlin and since that time has been on good terms with the German Government, the report continued.

German Plans Known

In the opinion of banking officials interviewed, one investigating agency declared, Jan A. Bata has reliable informants in Germany who knew in advance of the German plans to acquire neutral territories. This is indicated specifically by the fact that on April 29, 1940, there was a cable transfer of $216,000 from Norway to Stockholm, from Stockholm to the Chase National Bank of New York and from Chase to the Union Trust Company, Baltimore, to the credit of Ataman, Inc., special account.

Electricity Economy In Japan Compulsory

Street Lighting, Stores And Tramways Affected

Tokyo, Nov. 3.

The first day of the restrictions on electricity consumption in Japan showed a saving of approximately 100,000 kilowatts during the morning hours, officials of the Japan Power Generation and Transmission Co. announced today, according to the "Japan Times."

It may be recalled that consumers of electricity were recently urged to cut down on their consumption, while large factories decided to close down their plants one day a week in order to economize on electricity.

Keeping in mind their bitter experience during the electricity shortage last year, the public co-operated willingly and results were considered highly satisfactory.

Stores Assist

Officials of the Sogo department store closed two elevators and used the escalators only two hours every day. In several large buildings, leaflets urging people to close unnecessary lights were distributed.

Municipal, Tramway Cuts

The municipal authorities are co-operating wholeheartedly in the move, and some of the street lamps in Tokyo will be put out for a few hours every night. The inter-urban tramways, asked to cut down on their electricity consumption by five per cent., were compelled to extinguish some of their station lights and to reduce the number of coaches on their express trams.—Havas.

Britain's Sterling Area Funds

Important Feature of the Financial Situation Has Been the Growth of London Assets

THE growth of London assets belonging to the countries comprising the sterling area has been an important feature of the British financial situation since the beginning of the war. It has played its part in contributing to the restoration of cheap money after the short-lived adventure into higher rates which began in August of last year. By providing a liquid fund of resources out of which certain Dominions have been able to repay maturing sterling loans it has helped to swell the volume of funds seeking reinvestment in the long-term market, and has thus assisted in maintaining the level of gilt-edged values. Finally, it has produced a considerable supply of funds for direct investment in Government securities of various forms and has thus eased the task of bridging the gap between revenue and expenditure without recourse to inflationary borrowing. Sir Kingsley Wood's introduction to the recent supplementary Budget stressed this factor by implication, since it excused the failure of his proposals to cover a larger proportion of the deficit by additional taxation, states "The Economist."

These sterling area funds themselves form only part of the accumulation of short-term funds in London. There must be included, in addition to these, the sterling balances which accumulated here as a result of the Anglo-French monetary agreement and of the subsequent exchange agreements between this country and the Dutch and Belgian colonies. The French balances, which are now blocked, must have reached an appreciable level, though, as in the case of the other groups of funds accumulated here as a result of Allied monetary and exchange agreements, they are not susceptible of statistical measurement. Finally, there are the later accumulations of sterling arising from the introduction of payments agreements with neutral countries. Here, again, it is impossible to measure the extent to which sterling is piling up in the various special accounts by which these clearing agreements are operated. But it should be safe to assume, given the abnormal conditions with which our balance of payments is confronted, that on balance these clearings will be running slightly against us and that sterling will consequently be accumulating in these accounts.

Bulk Purchases

It is, however, with the first group of these sterling funds that this article is primarily concerned, not only because they provide the only measurable item in the total, but for the much more satisfying reason that it is quantitatively by far the most important item. The expansion in these funds since the beginning of the war can be readily understood. The prices of the primary products of the Dominions and Colonies have tended to increase, while our purchases of such products have been increasingly concentrated on the Empire by the course of the war. The German invasion of Denmark and Holland, for example, mean increased purchases of dairy produce from Australia and New Zealand. The bulk purchases of the Ministries of Supply and Food have covered the entire exportable surplus of such diverse products as copper from Rhodesia, jute from India, cotton from Egypt, wool from Australia, and cocoa from West Africa. These bulk purchases have introduced another element of expansion in the sterling resources of the exporting countries. When the trade in these commodities was handled through private channels, it was normally financed on the basis of several months' credit, or sale and payment were made after consignment to this country. The tendency now is for the Government agency effecting the purchase to pay cash for the greater part of the value of the goods, when taking delivery of them in the exporting country, or even on appraisement by the representative on the spot. The payments have thus been swept forward by two or three months This forestalling factor alone accounts for an appreciable increase in the London funds of the exporting countries, but it is an increase that cannot again be repeated, and which will be cancelled as and when more normal methods of trade and finance return.

London Funds

The available data on the movements of these London funds will be found in the appended table. They cannot provide an exact picture of the position at a given moment, for he returns from which they are compiled reach London after varying intervals, and after delays caused by the war. Some figures represent monthly averages, while others refer to the position on given days. Moreover, the table is by no means all-inclusive in its presentation of sterling area assets. Some of the authorities concerned (such as the various Colonial currency boards) only make their returns available after lengthy delays, and even their latest figures are irrelevant to this wartime study Again, much of the accumulation of sterling resources by firms and individuals operating in such parts of the Empire as India and the Malay States is to be found in the assets of the Far Eastern banks domiciled in London, and cannot be isolated from the mass of sterling assets which these important institutions command. But he picture none the less takes shape, despite these qualifications. The assets maintained in London by the groups of sterling area members included in the table have expanded since the beginning of the war to recent dates bteween £80 millions and £90 millions, or about 40 per cent. In less than a year, the fall in these sterling assets since the middle of 1937—when they reached their peak—has been regained.

India's Balance

The largest increase in these balances is that recorded by India. The sterling securities and balances of the Reserve Bank have risen since the beginning of the war from Rs. 69,58,00,000 to Rs. 156,93,000. These holdings of the Reserve Bank represent the only variable holding of sterling in the hands of the Indian authorities. The Secretary of State has a small drawing account at the Bank of England which, however, remains virtually stable. In addition, there is a Silver Redemption Account of some £7,500,000, but its level has shown no change over the past year. Over and above the increase in the sterling assets of the Reserve Bank, it is probable that the Exchange banks have increased their London funds as a result of the favourable development in the Indian balance of payments over the past year; but this item is one of many which cannot be measured. The increase in Indian sterling assets would have been even greater than that shown in the above figures had it not been for the repatriation of over £10 millions of Indian sterling debt over the past year. Last February it was announced that holders of Indian Government sterling loans outstanding to the amount of £96,000,000 would have the right to exchange into the counterpart of these loans expressed in rupees. With the help of official purchase £9 millions had been so converted by March 1 last, and the movement has made further progress since.

New Zealand Funds

Next in importance has been the recovery in New Zaeland's London funds. The substantial improvement in these resources is to some extent due to the severe restriction of imports which was put into operation last year as part of the exchange control scheme. The sterling reserves of the Reserve Bank and of the trading banks had fallen to inordinately low levels, and their recent recovery has restored them to a figure commensurate with the weight of New Zealand's external obligations. It must also be recalled that in July, 1939, when New Zealand issued her £16 millions conversion loan, export credits of £4 millions and defence credits of £5 millions were granted to the Dominion. The partial utilization of these facilities has no doubt played some part in the remarkable recovery which has occurred in the Dominion's reserve of London funds.

The increase in the sterling funds of the Commonwealth Bank of Australia must in large measure be accounted for by the transfer to that institution of the London resources which, before the introduction of exchange control, would have been held by the Australian trading banks. Prior to the outbreak of the war these resources amounted to almost £20 millions. Today they are of no measurable importance. Taking this into consideration, the increase in Australia's sterling funds since the beginning of the war has evidently been singularly small. Indeed, calculations covering the year to June 30 last, and based on the known visible and invisible items in the Commonwealth balance of payments, suggest that over this period the total of London funds may have fallen by some £5 millions. The reconciliation of thsee calculations with the increase in Australian London funds may to some extent be provided by the treatment of part of Australia's war expenditure in inter-Governmental operations which as yet have not affected Australia's sterling assets.

The fall in the sterling resources of the South African Reserve Bank is superficially the most surprising of the movements revealed by the table. It must, however, be read in the light of the fact that on July 1 a South African sterling loan of £7,900,000 was redeemed out of the accumulated balances of the Reserve Bank. Prior to this operation, the sterling assets of the Reserve Bank had touched £8,995,000, their highest point of the year to date. The increase in the sterling assets of the National Bank of Egypt calls for no special mention. That shown by the London balances of the Irish Currency Commission and of the Irish banks is also a normal development arising out of the balance of trade between the two countries. The disturbing element introduced by sales of sterling securities by the Irish Currency Commission and the conversion of the proceeds into gold occurred early in 1939 and does not affect the figures given in the table.

Other Contributions

The expansion in the sterling assets of various members of the sterling area is a movement which is not likely to proceed much further. One important check to it lies in the fact that most of the countries concerned are large debtors of the United Kingdom on long-term debt account. They will no doubt seize the opportunity offered by any abnormal accumulation of their short-term assets in sterling to repay long-term debt as and when optional maturities fall due. The process has already been at work in the cases of South Africa and India, while Canada—though outside the sterling group—has also played some part in it. Another factor helping in the same direction is the flow of gifts of one kind or another from the Empire to the British Exchequer. The war donations from Malaya and the less ambitious, but in the mass more important, flood of "Spitfire" and other contributions now pouring from every part of the Empire are another factor which will help to keep the level of these London funds down. As far as the accumulation of sterling resources in the special accounts of neutral countries is concerned, it may be assumed that each agreement in question provides its own machinery for the settlement of balances on either side when they reach what are regarded as unwieldy proportions. The accumulation of sterling assets in London has until now been a most welcome development of the war months. It is subject to sufficient checks to prevent the movement from acquiring the dangerous potentialities which, for example, characterized the short-term funds in London during the years of the gold exchange standard.

Formosan Sugar Badly Damaged by Typhoons

Production Expected to Drop 13 Per Cent.

Tokyo, Nov. 4.

With its sugar plantations heavily damaged by last season's exceptional wave of typhoons, Formosa is expected to produce 13 per cent. less sugar in 1941 than it did this year, according as the "Asahi."

After the first typhoon had struck the island early in August, the Formosan branch of the Japan Federation of Sugar Manufacturers' associations, conducting a survey of the damage done, arrived at the conclusion that Formosa's sugar production for 1941 would amount to approximately 18,846,000 piculs.

Further Damages

However, another violent typhoon struck Formosa at the end of August, and the estimated sugar production was reduced to 17,441,000 piculs.

Yet a third typhoon, the most violent of all, hit the island on September 29 and 30, wreaking havoc among the sugar plantations. After this storm, the estimate for Formosa's sugar production slumped to 15,723,000 piculs.

This figure falls short of the 16,000,000 piculs expected to be produced, and is way behind this year's production of 18,276,000 piculs.—Havas.

London Stocks

Tuesday's Closing Quotations

London, Nov. 5.

Under the influence of broadening activity most prices on the London Stock Exchange today showed an upward trend.

Kaffirs, especially met with considerable demand and registered numerous gains, while British gilt-edged securities continued to encounter a good investment inquiry.

Oils attracted some selective buying, while home rails and industrials showed marked appreciation during the final stages of trading.—Reuter.

Auto Palace Dividend

The board of directors of the Auto Palace Co. Ltd., have decided to pay a second interim dividend of $2.00 per share to the shareholders on November 15.

For the first time in China the Central Industrial Works of the Ministry of Economic Affairs is producing starch and industrial dyestuffs in large quantities, states a Chungking report to the "Sin War Pao." After a series of experiments a number of factories engaged in manufacturing materials for making tiles and porcelain, leather and pure chemicals. The aim of the Central Industrial Works is to manufacture all kinds of raw materials to serve China's industrial requirements, which hitherto have been imported.

Tangier Taken By Spanish Coup

Strategic Importance of Position Opposite Rock Of Gibraltar Stressed

Casablanca, Morocco, Nov. 6.

The international control of Tangier was overthrown by a Spanish military coup Monday.

Spanish troops under Gen. Yuste, commanding the Spanish occupation forces, stationed artillery at commanding points through the international zone, then posted announcements that Tangier again was a Spanish city.

Foreign Ministers representing Powers interested in the international zone were notified that the international status of the city was terminated.

Foreign diplomatic agents included those representing the United States and other signatories of the international pact guaranteeing the special status of Tangier.

As a result of the Spanish Government's arbitrary act, the International Control Committee and legislative assemblies were suspended.

Spanish Money Only

Announcement that the peseta would be the only official currency in the Tangier zone was the first act in the Spanish seizure. Previously the pound sterling and U. S. dollar also were official standards.

Before announcing termination of the international status, Spanish troops, including several batteries of artillery, were landed.

United States authorities said they would remain in Tangier for the time being but they were unable to say what Washington's reaction would be, especially regarding the future of the new steamship line opened from New York to Tangier.

Tangier was the last neutral port in the entire Mediterranean basin with which American shipping could communicate.

Opposite Gibraltar

Many persons in Tangier believed the occupation was one of the points decided in the recent conversations between Chancellor Hitler and Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The move was thought to be one of the steps in Spain's announced participation in a new order in Europe.

The most important aspect of the move, however, is Tangier's strategic position directly opposite Gibraltar. —United Press.

Spanish Army Ready

Tenerife (Canary Islands), Nov. 5.

"There is but one policy for those in the army, and that is to lead Spain towards her historic destinies when El Caudillo thinks that the time has come and gives us the order," Gen. Valera, the Spanish Minister of War, declared here today in the course of a tour of inspection through the Canary Islands.

He recalled that it was from these islands that General Francisco Franco, Spanish Chief of State left in July 1936 to lead his troops to victory in the Civil War.

Addressing a unit of troops, the Minister of War said:

"I will stress to El Caudillo that you are all ready to give further proofs of your heroism when asked to do so."—Havas.

Democratic Ideals Or Nazi Terror

"The Times" on Choice Now Before the World

London, Nov. 6.

The choice before the world today lies between the kind of power which has manifested itself in all its naked terror in Nazi Germany, and only little less crudely among Nazi imitators and satellites, and the kind of power which expresses itself in the hopes and ideals of the British Commonwealth of nations and the United States, says "The Times" in a leading article today.

"The conception popularized by Germany and Japan of continental blocs," continues the newspaper, "is wholly artificial, and has no root in economic realities.

"It may be rash to assume that any international order which we may be able to establish after the war will be coterminous with the world. But it cannot at any rate be limited by continents.

"The British Commonwealth has never allowed itself to be circumscribed by geographical limitations precisely because it has never claimed to be a geographical bloc."—Reuter.

British Now Mastering U-Boat Campaign

Tonnage Lost Decreases At End of October

London, Nov. 6.

The British Navy gradually is mastering the intensified German U-boat campaign, an Admiralty report indicated yesterday.

British merchantile losses due to war action for the week ended at midnight, October 31, totalled 9,988 tons, excluding the Empress of Britain.

The figure was the lowest since the week ended at midnight, May 5, when only one British ship of 6,000 tons was sunk.

Allied losses for the last week of October were two ships totalling 6,874 tons, said the announcement. No neutral ships were lost, said the announcement.

Total German and Italian shipping losses for the entire war up to October 31, including ships under Axis control or useful to the Axis Powers, were 325 ships approximating 1,542,000 tons, said the Admiralty.—United Press.

No More Pure Coffee to Be Sold in France

Vichy, Nov. 5.

No more pure coffee will be sold in France as from December 1, it was announced here today.

Henceforth, the monthly ration for coffee will be reduced by about 1.7 ounces to about 8 ounces. This will be a mixture of 190 grammes of substitute products and 60 grammes of pure coffee.—Havas.

Girls Train to Help Lumbermen

Girls from all over Britain, of all types and classes, are undergoing a brief but thorough training in lumbering. On completing their course they join the Forestry Section of the Women's Land Army, and work for the Forestry Commission, assisting the Newfoundland lumberjacks who have voluntarily come forward to lend their expert aid. (1) shows girls measuring Cordwood, later to be used in chemical research work. (2) Queueing up to sharpen their axes on the stone; after the day's work. (3) Measuring a fallen giant after it has been stripped. (4) A lumber girl measuring branch of a felled tree.

Women Learn Forestry Work

Trained by Experts from Canada in All Essentials of Lumbering

BETWEEN 8,000 and 9,000 girls and women from all over Britain are now busily engaged in the regular force of the Women's Land Army, and many of them are receiving expert instruction in the unfeminine work of lumbering. They have joined the Forestry Section of the Women's Land Army and work for the Forestry Commission, assisting Newfoundland lumberjacks who have voluntarily come to Britain to lend their expert aid.

There are several training camps in various parts of Britain and the course of instruction lasts three or four weeks.

The work, which is hard but healthy, includes the identification of trees, stripping, measuring, the estimating by simple means of the contents of logs which have been felled and the preparation and consignment of small timber required for use as pitprops. Some time has to be spent in the saw-mills where the girls learn how to measure sawn timber and how to stack boards and planks for seasoning.

Picture (1) shows two girls engaged in measuring cordwood later to be used in chemical research work. The practical work in the forests also includes the cross-cutting of poles for props, the stripping of branches and barks, and the supervision of wagon loading. The care of tools is a subject which has to be thoroughly understood and girls are queueing up to sharpen their axes on the grindstone after the day's work.

Training Centres

At the training centres the girls receive free board and lodging and a personal allowance of ten shillings a week. At the end of their training they are placed in employment in couples by the Forestry Commission in the forests of England and Wales at a starting wage of £2 a week. Out of this wage the timber measurers have to pay for their billeting accommodation which is a matter of arrangement between themselves, the Forestry Commission and the landladies. The working hours are usually from 7 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with half a day off on Saturday. Travelling expenses are paid both to the place of training, and to the areas where the girls are subsequently employed.

The girls have, in addition, done a great deal of tree planting and by their care have saved thousands of young trees. The Land Girls must all be of strong physique and fitted for an outdoor life in all weathers. They must have reached a secondary school standard of education and have a knowledge of elementary mathematics. Women between the ages of 18 and 40 are required.

In the auxiliary force of the Land Army students from universities and schools are putting in four weeks' holiday work on British farms, assisting in harvesting, fruitpicking, potato lifting, hoeing, etc. There has been a splendid response this summer to the appeal for help of this character.

At the present moment the Women's Land Army has enrolled sufficient volunteers to meet the immediate labour demand and all candidates must be prepared to wait after enrolment until their services are required.

Lady Denman is the honorary director of the Women's Land Army, and she has as her second-in-command, Mrs. Inez Jenkins. Mrs. Walter Elliot is the head of the London Committee. Each county has its own committee and Kent, which has the honour of having enrolled more women than any other county, has as the chairman of its committee, Lady Cornwallis.

R.A.F. Again Blast Channel Ports

Big Fires Break Out as Bombs Strike; Aerodrome Attacked, Set Ablaze

London, Nov. 6.

Adverse weather over Germany on Monday night again hampered operations by aircraft of the Lomber Command.

Channel coast areas were less obscured and early in the night opportunity was taken of a temporary improvement in weather conditions to launch harassing attacks against docks and shipping at Le Havre, Boulogne and Ostend.

The sky was clear when the first raider reached Le Havre shortly after 8.30 p.m. and dropping a stick of bombs across Bassin de Mare from a low level started two big fires. As the attacks developed the weather rapidly deteriorated and by 9.30 p.m. great banks of cloud, 6,000 feet deep, covered the sky reducing visibility to the minimum.

In the final attack launched in a shallow-dive to below cloud level, a salvo of heavy calibre bombs was seen to strike a large hangar-like building at Gare Maritime Transatlantique. A series of explosions was followed by six outbreaks of fire, one of which was of such intensity that it could be seen from 20 miles out to sea despite bad visibility.

At Boulogne and Ostend high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped on dock areas but in both cases clouds obscured the resultant damage. One raider, prevented by the weather from locating Boulogne harbour, attacked instead an aerodrome at Montivilliers, 4 miles north-east of Boulogne. Its bombs fell among groups of white lights at one end of an illuminated flarepath and started several small fires.—Reuter.

Safety First Campaign To Be Held Shortly

Some Modifications to Be Made This Year

It was learned yesterday that a "Safety First" campaign, which proved so successful last year, will again be held, the date having been set for November 18, when both the International Settlement and the French Concession police forces will co-operate to keep traffic accidents to a minimum, with the help of the city's population, of course. The campaign will last a week, ending on November 24, and further details will be given in the near future.

It is known, however, that, although it will be run on similar lines to last year's programme, some modifications have been made this time. Pamphlets and penmats again will be distributed, but posters will be absent. Lectures, nevertheless, will be given by the authorities. The modifications have been caused by the prevailing conditions in the city, it was learned, but they should not decrease the importance of the campaign.

German Vessels Loading

Mexico City, Nov. 6.

Four German ships which have taken refuge in Tampico harbour since the outbreak of the war, yesterday were said to be loading an extraordinary quantity of supplies. Speculation was roused that the vessels might attempt to make a sudden break for the sea. The supplies were mostly foodstuffs, said reports. The vessels are the Orinoco, Rhin, Idarwald and Phyrgia, said reliable reports.—United Press.

Nazi Raider Shells British Ship

Report Picked Up in N. Y. By Radio; German Attack On Convoy Indicated

New York, Nov. 6.

The British liner Rangitiki yesterday was being shelled by a pocket battleship of the Graf Spee class, according to a radio report from the liner intercepted by Mackay Radio here.

The Rangitiki gave its position as about 1,000 miles west of Ireland and 750 miles south of Iceland.

The Rangitiki is listed in Lloyds registry as a 16,698 ton oil burning vessel. It is registered out of Plymouth.

The attacking pocket battleship apparently was a vessel of the Graf Spee class, said the radio report.

The Graf Spee was scuttled and sunk off Montevideo, Uruguay, last year after having been driven into the harbour during a spectacular sea battle with British warships.

The raiding German vessel "continued a leisurely attack" on a convoy, another message intercepted by Mackay Radio said.

The Cornish City, listed by Lloyds as a 4,958 ton freighter registered out of Bideford, England, also was said to be in the convoy.

Although first reports did not specifically list the Rangitiki as being in the convoy it was presumed to be.—United Press.

ss. Windsor Castle Attacked

London, Nov. 6.

Giving an account of a German aeroplane's attack on the 19,000-ton Union Castle liner Windsor Castle, which arrived safely at a British port, Capt. Brown, who commands the vessel, said altogether four bombs were dropped.

The Nazi bomber tried a head-on attack but an alteration in course forced it to attack from the bow, and the ship's guns went into action.

Capt. Brown paid tribute to the conduct of his crew which, he said, was exemplary in the extreme. "We think the first officer's gun must have scored a hit", he added, "for when the plane turned away smoke was coming from it."

The Windsor Castle carried 90 passengers and a full crew.—British official Wireless.

Japan Disappointed In U.S. Election

Steady Deterioration of Relations with U.S. Seen

From Percy Whitlock
N.C.D.N. Special Correspondent in Japan

Tokyo, Nov. 6.

Japanese general opinion is that President Roosevelt's reelection means a steady deterioration in Japan's relations with Great Britain and the United States. Some Japanese, however, hope that the use of an anti-Japanese policy as an electioneering device, being no longer required, President Roosevelt and the State Department may now revise their attitude and become more logical and realistic, leaving the Far East alone to work out its own problems, as such a policy is likely to be of more advantage both to British and American actual interests.

The reelection of President Roosevelt had been more or less expected although Mr. Wendell Willkie's defeat caused widespread disappointment here.

Longest Raid of War on London

Attacks Fail to Develop On Big Scale; Casualties Said Not Heavy

London, Nov. 6.

After seven German craft had been shot down over Britain yesterday, the Nazi Luftwaffe carried out its longest raid of the war over London last night and early today.

The raid was more intense than the previous night's attack, which marked the renewal of Germany's furious raids on Britain after a lull of several days. The damage, however, was not believed extensive.

The raid began earlier and ended later than any previous attack on the London area.

The Air Ministry said that the raids by the Germans on Britain last night were directed principally against east Scotland, the Midlands and London.

Attacks Subside

"They did not actually develop on a large scale," the communique added.

"Later in the night, attacks subsided and only intermittent raids took place until the early hours of this morning when there was some increase of activity," the communique said.

Up to 7 a.m. casualties were not heavy, the Air Ministry reported.

Miriam Hopkins will wear 45 costumes in "The Lady with Red Hair."
